LOITASA Research in Progress Birgit Brock-Utne, Zubeida Desai, Martha A. S. Qorro, 2005 English as a Language of Learning, Teaching and Inclusivity Liesel Hibbert, 2023-08-18 Hibbert explores South Africa's higher education crisis utilising case studies and first hand experiences with English as the language of instruction The historical overview provides a framework with which to understand the complicated nature of using English as a language of instruction in South Africa past and present Student narratives are presented to illustrate mainly breakthroughs but also challenges An overview is provided of imported English teaching methodologies and how they have emerged and developed in the local educational system over decades It is demonstrated how these methodologies relate to socio economic and political events and trends at each juncture By applying defamiliarisation as a research method of investigation students translinguaging struggles are recorded and discussed both pre pandemic and in the pandemic period The experiences of non monolingual English speaking staff and students and of local English African language bilinguals is foregrounded as they are by far the majority in South African higher education and schools The relevance of the experiences and learning paths of those staff and students is enhanced This book aids lecturers across disciplines and English language facilitators in the improvement of English acquisition curricula through exposure to arguments case studies and learning path narratives in this volume and prompts and inspires researchers to develop further theories and experiments in their own context Neuroscience in Africa Nilesh B. Patel, Vivienne A. Russell, Nouria Lakhdar-Ghazal, 2019-06-28 This Research Topic covers some of the latest research on brain and behavior in health and disease in Africa With its untapped resources and unique situations Neuroscience in Africa has the potential to contribute to a better understanding of human brain function both in health and disease The diverse African fauna display a range of specializations in brain structure function relationships as a result of adaptations to the environment Exploration of these may lead to insights into coping strategies which could be extrapolated to humans Africa's unique flora is being investigated for anti inflammatory antinociceptive antioxidant antiepileptogenic and neuroprotective properties to determine its potential for use in the treatment of human brain disorders There is also research on neurodegenerative and infectious diseases not only common to the global world but also neglected tropical diseases and conditions which provide unique avenues of investigations in basic and translational neuroscience on highly debilitating disorders and on the effects of pathogens and environmental toxins Physical and Symbolic Borders and Boundaries and How They Unfold in Space Basak Tanulku, Simone Pekelsma, 2024-03-05 This book critically examines how borders and boundaries physical and symbolic unfold in different geographies and spaces It aims to understand why they exist and how they are constructed deconstructed and reconstructed The book explores why certain borders boundaries persist while others are removed and new ones are erected It does not focus on one form of border boundary or geographic location It shifts its attention to different geographies borders and boundaries It also focuses on intersections between them and how they complete each other The book provides case studies from the past and present allowing readers to connect subjects periods and geographies The chapters address classical subjects such as nation states and tackle novel questions such as ownership against access that is of urban infrastructures COVID 19 and lockdowns and the divides within digital worlds The book benefits from visual essays that complement the theoretical and empirical chapters showing the complexity of the phenomenon in a simple and effective way The book will be of interest to academics researchers and students working in the fields of urban and rural studies urban sociology cities and communities urban and regional planning urban anthropology political sciences and migration studies human geography cultural geography urban anthropology and visual arts

Language of Instruction in Tanzania and South Africa - Highlights from a Project, 2010-01-01 This book is based on chapters in a series of four books from the first five years 2002 2006 of the Language of Instruction in Tanzania and South Africa LOITASA project LOITASA is a NUFU funded Norwegian University Fund project which began in January 2002 and will continue through to the end of 2011 The chapters reflect the state of the research at the end of the first five years of LOITASA in 2006 and were selected by reviewers independent of the project The selection of chapters brought together bring to the forefront the dilemmas facing developing countries as they seek to position themselves in an increasingly interconnected global system while at the same time maintaining a sense of national and regional identity The chapters in this collection reflect both positive outcomes when the medium of instruction is a widely known language as well as the challenges of mother tongue instruction in countries where historically a powerful language like English has dominated The four LOITASA books in this series from which the chapters in this book are drawn are Language of instruction in Tanzania and South Africa LOITASA published by E Zubeida Desai the South African project leader and Martha Qorro who is on the project steering committee in Tanzania

Drawing for Science Education Phyllis Katz, 2017-03-23 This book argues for the essential use of drawing as a tool for science teaching and learning The authors are working in schools universities and continual science learning CSL settings around the world They have written of their experiences using a variety of prompts to encourage people to take pen to paper and draw their thinking sometimes direct observation and in other instances their memories The result is a collection of research and essays that offer theory techniques outcomes and models for the reader Young children have provided evidence of the perceptions that they have accumulated from families and the media before they reach classrooms Secondary students describe their ideas of chemistry and physics Teacher educators use drawings to consider the progress of their undergraduates understanding of science teaching and even their moral ethical responses to teaching about climate change Museum visitors have drawn their understanding of the physics of how exhibit sounds are transmitted A physician explains how the history of drawing has been a critical tool to medical education and doctor patient communications Each chapter contains samples insights and where applicable analysis techniques The chapters in this book should be helpful to researchers and teachers alike across the teaching and learning continuum The sections are divided by the kinds of activities for which drawing has historically been used in science education An instance of observation Audubon Linnaeus A process how plants grow over time what happens when chemicals combine Conceptions of what science is and who does it Images of identity development in science teaching and learning Pursuit of Liberation Emily A. Nemeth, Ashley N. Patterson, 2022-04-01 The authors of this volume collectively demonstrate the importance of critical service learning in this historic moment as we participate in and witness ongoing struggles for justice around the world The contributors of this volume offer guidance to educators and scholars alike who are interested in designing participating in and studying the potential of alliances formed through critical service learning The volume emphasizes theoretical and historical foundations of critical service learning pressing questions facing the field exploration of outcomes of and ongoing challenges for the pedagogy and design features and larger scale models of critical service learning that can be implemented across the educational landscape of elementary secondary and higher education ENDORSEMENTS This volume in the Advances in Service Learning Research series does not disappoint Emily Nemeth and Ashley Patterson have amassed an amazing team of authors who take readers on a rewarding journey across diverse cultural communities and educational contexts revealing the limitations of traditional service learning approaches in addressing issues of racial injustice Readers of this volume will gain a greater understanding of the rapidly evolving and maturing nature of higher education service learning pedagogy and the need to adopt more critical perspectives in the study and practice of service learning Andrew Furco University of Minnesota Pursuit of Liberation conceived and written during tumultuous times in the United States offers hope for the possibility of social justice and liberation in educational spaces The modern day brutal lynching of George Floyd an African American man by a white police officer and the COVID 19 pandemic revealed the horridness and inhumanity of a country that advertises itself as a beacon of equity and inclusion This volume is a reminder that social justice and liberation require vigilance The editors Professors Nemeth and Patterson persuade us to understand that the work of inclusion and liberation in education is complex multidisciplinary continuous and iterative Most importantly they convincingly assert that communities and educational institutions need to take bold steps toward a more just hopeful and loving world through critical service learning Shirley Mthethwa Sommers University of Mpumalanga Focus on First Year Success Brenda Leibowitz, Antoinette Van der Merwe, Susan Van Schalkwyk, 2009-11-01 The importance of the first year experience is now well recognised This collection of papers makes a fascinating and important contribution to our understanding of students transition to higher education This is a scholarly engaging and illuminating text that is relevant not only in the context of South Africa but for anyone interested in student learning in the first year of university education David Gosling Plymouth University XXX International Congress of Psychology: Abstracts Michele Robert, 2017-10-03 The abstracts of the XXX International Congress of Psychology July 2012 Cape Town are published as a supplement to Volume 47 of the International Journal of Psychology The published volume includes the abstracts of the invited addresses symposia oral and poster presentations numbering over 5 000 separate contributions and creating an invaluable overview of the discipline of psychological science around the world today Drum ,2009-04
