Beale Black and Blue Margaret McKee, Fred Chisenhall, 1993-09-01. W.C. Handy, Furry Lewis, Booker White, Lillie May Glover, Roosevelt Sykes, Arthur Crudup, B.B. King, Bobby Blue Bland, Muddy Waters, these and other musicians, singers and songwriters including the young Elvis Presley eventually went to Beale Street in Memphis, Tennessee to learn, improve and practice their art. To Handy and untold other blacks, Beale became as much a symbol of escape from black despair as Harriet Tubman's underground railroad, says Margaret McKee and Fred Chisenhall. They present Beale as a living microcosm of determination, survival and change from its early days as a raucous haven for gamblers and grafters and as a black show business center to its present day languishing. Choosing the former newspaper columnist, disc jockey and schoolteacher Nat D. Williams as their main authority for the first part of this volume, the street's history, the authors have selected an individual with wisdom, perspective and a distinctive voice that speaks from a lifetime of experience on Beale. His radio show on WDIA, Tan Town Jamboree, was heard by thirteen year old Elvis Presley. Nat D. said, "We had a boast that if you made it on Beale Street, you can make it anywhere. And Elvis Presley made it on Beale first." Another Beale Streeter recalls, "He got that shaking that wiggle from Charlie Burse. Ukulele Ike, we called him right there at the Gray Mule on Beale." The street's history is richly complemented by the rare, extensive interviews that constitute the second half of the volume. We undertook our research, the authors tell us, not as a study of the blues, but of the blues musicians themselves. They were a dying breed, these wandering minstrels who had become the principal storytellers of their people. Most of the musicians interviewed grew up in the rural southern areas where the authors found them, sometimes not far from their early homes. They tell of the music that took them to Memphis street of the living blues. All show a resilience to despair despite life's harsh times. Arthur Big Boy Crudup, who never received his accumulated royalties, shrugs, "I come here with nothing and I ain't going away with nothing, and it's no need worrying my life with it." In the life of Beale Street and in the conversations of its musicians, we experience with penetrating awareness a delicate balance of humor, courage and pain. Positively Main Street Toby Thompson, 2008. An updated version of the author's discovery of the real person behind the mythology Bob Dylan created includes an interview with the author, previously unpublished photographs and a new preface by the author. Original The Atheist's Guide to Heaven & Hell Charlie Marx, 2007. Charlie Marx, like many of us, enjoys a good moan from time to time. This particular series of moans and groans resulted in a two and a half week period of him writing this novel until he got it all out of his system. The result is this collection of hilarious views on life, the universe and charity shop charges. Helped by some characters in his head,

we travel into the mind of this disturbed individual and see the world as it just might be Along with famous and infamous people in situations you will certainly not have imagined them in before you will find characters like an educationally deprived scarecrow an ambitious but ultimately disappointed 5 note and a series of improbable and improper pensioners Within this novel you will find out God's real name what the difference is between a hill and a mountain as well as why Charlie went all the way to Turkey to end up in Amsterdam
