Productivity,

Professionalism, and Parenting in Academia Christine E. Tulley, 2025-04-30 Drawing on time use diary analysis this unique and detailed study fills in the larger narrative about what it takes hour by hour to navigate academic motherhood with a rhetoric and composition career Looking specifically at the intersections between parenting and writing for publication in order to find out how and when writing for career advancing tasks such as publication occur but also through the lens of disciplinary time constraints including heavy grading and administrative workloads the book examines support systems noted within diary entries that make combining motherhood and a career in rhetoric and composition possible Using both quantitative analysis of hours and qualitative coding of time use diaries from rhet comp moms this book answers questions about publishing professionalism and parenting This book will interest scholars and graduate students working in the discipline of rhetoric writing and composition particularly those working on labor and professional issues on gender and equality within the discipline and anyone working in all fields looking for ways to foster a better work life balance The Peace Corps Volunteer, a Quarterly Statistical Summary Peace Corps (U.S.). Learning to Teach Inclusively

Celia Oyler, 2017-09-25 This book co authored by a teacher educator a diverse group of five pre service student teachers and their student teaching supervisor takes a unique illuminating look at the experience of student teaching from the perspective of student teachers It is premised on learning to teach as an inquiry process enriched by collaborative conversations Readers are invited into student teachers dilemmas and decisions as they negotiate between their public school placements and their university based coursework Throughout the year of student teaching the authors document their discussions and reflections about teaching in inclusive classrooms that shed light on the complex process of learning to teach and also offer insights into issues of teaching for equity Each of the central chapters is written by an individual student teacher and tracks a specific question over the course of two semesters Topics include contrasting models of inclusion and teachers differing orientations toward issues of community difference and normalcy how teachers foster peer relationships classroom management and discipline heterogeneous instruction and school wide culture and systems that promote or mitigate against inclusion A new perspective on what can be learned from student teaching is provided by the student teachers supervisor In the concluding chapter the teacher educators address the connections among the student teachers inquiries and offer an analysis from a disability studies disability rights perspective on how inclusion fits into a social rather than a medical model of disability All of the authors of this book seek to contribute to conversations that place advocacy inquiry contestation and challenge at the center of the teacher's role. This volume is their invitation to readers to join in a larger conversation about the challenges of and necessity for becoming inclusive teachers. Learning to Teach Inclusively is intended for inservice and preservice courses in elementary education, inclusion, and teacher research, and for field experience seminars. It is also suitable for graduate courses in teacher research, supervision, and research in teacher education.

Teaching the Educable Mentally Retarded
Robert A. Sedlak, Denise M. Sedlak, 1985-01-01
Robert and Denise Sedlak are noted for their work with mentally retarded young people. Teaching the Educable Mentally Retarded combines their training and experience to create an invaluable resource for both the practicing and beginning teacher of mildly retarded students. Practical suggestions, case studies, and real-life anecdotes are interwoven with research findings. The result is an up-to-date, comprehensive guide to handling the expected and unexpected situations teachers confront in the classroom. The book incorporates current trends in education, featuring sections on the use of instructional aides in the classroom and on the use of computers and other teaching technology in special education classes. The authors' style is clear and easy to follow, and the work is enhanced through the copious use of charts and figures.
