

CHAPTER 1

Review

1.1 In your own words, what are the differences between product testing and material testing?

Product testing includes: (a) The goal of the test procedure is different. Different product testing is designed to discover the difference of a component under consideration that would result in a successful test. Material testing is intended to establish the material characteristics (material properties) that are independent of the material's use. (b) The specimens change in different product testing since after the material is the change in which it will be used in the real product. Material testing uses industrial specimens always designed to consistently determine one or more properties of the material with the smallest possible error.

1.2 What are the shortcomings, differences between intensity, plasticity, and flow rate?

Intensity is measured with deformation that is fully reversible when the applied load is removed (area of a curve above the x-axis). Plasticity is permanent change (change without recovery) since after the load is removed. Plasticity inherently involves breaking of bonds and the creation of new surfaces. Different kinds of stress of these parameters (for plastic deformation) that the measurement of each one is dependent on the other.

1.3 What are the definitions for engineering stress, true stress, engineering strain, and true strain for loading along a single axis.

$$\sigma_{eng} = \text{engineering stress} = \frac{\text{load}}{\text{initial cross-sectional area}} = \frac{F}{A_0} \quad (1-1a)$$

$$\sigma_{true} = \text{true stress} = \frac{\text{load}}{\text{instantaneous cross-sectional area}} = \frac{F}{A} \quad (1-2a)$$

$$\epsilon_{true} = \text{true strain} = \ln \frac{\text{final length}}{\text{initial length}} = \ln \frac{l_1}{l_0} \quad (1-2b)$$

1.4 Under what conditions in Eq. 1-1 valid? What makes it no longer valid if these conditions are not met?

Equation 1-1 is valid only for independent stress-strain behavior for a single axis. Even for loading in uniaxial tension, stress-strain behavior is complex for all the nonlinearities (e.g., plasticity). Also other dependencies (variation of the yield strength that presented in Section 1.1) or other (e.g., strain rate) dependencies (e.g., the permission of the copyright owner is required).
