Person-centred Health Care Stephen Buetow,2016-06-10 Person centred health care is increasingly endorsed as a key element of high quality care yet in practice it often means patient centred health care This book scrutinizes the principle of primacy of patient welfare which although deeply embedded in health professionalism is long overdue for critical analysis and debate It appears incontestable because patients have greater immediate health needs than clinicians and the patient clinician encounter is often recognized as a moral enterprise as well as a service contract However Buetow argues that the implication that clinician welfare is secondary can harm clinicians patients and health system performance Revaluing participants in health care as moral equals this book advocates an ethic of virtue to respect the clinician as a whole person whose self care and care from patients can benefit both parties because their moral interests intertwine and warrant equal consideration It then considers how to move from values including moral equality in health care to practice for people in their particular situations Developing a genuinely inclusive concept of person centred care accepting clinicians as moral equals it also facilitates the coalescence of patient centred care and evidence based health care This reflective and provocative work develops a constructive alternative to the taken for granted principle of primacy of patient welfare It is of interest to students and academics in the health and caring sciences philosophy ethics medical humanities and health management
