In Wicklow And West Kerry:

Travels in Wicklow, West Kerry and Connemara John Millington Synge, 2005 This book is an overlooked masterpiece by one of Ireland's best loved writers In it Synge captured the idiosyncracies of everyday speech better perhaps than any other Irish writer while his eye caught the details of a way of life that has long since disappeared First published in 1910 it is now available as a paperback for the first time complete with the evocative illustrations by Jack B Yeats universally regarded as twentieth century Ireland's greatest painter

Wicklow and Kerry Originally published in 1912 In Wicklow and West Kerry John Millington Synge, 2014-08-26 Some features of County Wicklow such as the position of the principal workhouses and holiday places on either side of the coach road from Arklow to Bray have made this district a favourite with the vagrants of Ireland A few of these people have been on the roads for generations but fairly often they seem to have merely drifted out from the ordinary people of the villages and do not differ greatly from the class they come from Their abundance has often been regretted yet in one sense it is an interesting sign for wherever the labourer of a country has preserved his vitality and begets an occasional temperament of distinction a certain number of vagrants are to be looked for In the middle classes the gifted son of a family is always the poorest usually a writer or artist with no sense for speculation and in a family of peasants where the average comfort is just over penury the gifted son sinks also and is soon a tramp on the roadside In Wicklow and West Kerry John Millington Synge, 2019-05-23 Edmund John Millington Synge was an Irish playwright poet prose writer travel writer and collector of folklore He was a key figure in the Irish Literary Revival and was one of the co founders of the Abbey Theatre In Wicklow and West Kerry John M Synge, 2021-03-14 Collection of articles and narratives about travelling in counties Wicklow and Kerry Originally published in 1912 In Wicklow and West Kerry John M. Synge, 2018-08-07 In Wicklow and West Kerry By J M Synge 1912 not always easy to test the stories that are told of their longevity One man however who died not long ago claimed to have reached one hundred and two with a show of likelihood for several old people remember his first appearance in a certain district as a man of middle age about the year of the Famine in 1847 or 1848 This man could hardly be classed with ordinary tramps for he was married several times in different parts of the world and reared children of whom he seemed to have forgotten in his old age even the names and sex In his early life he spent thirty years at sea where he sailed with some one he spoke of afterwards as Il mio capitane visiting India and Japan and gaining odd words and intonations that gave colour to his language When he was too old to wander in the world he learned all the paths of Wicklow and till the end of his life he could go the thirty miles from Dublin to the Seven Churches without as he said putting out his foot on a white road or seeing any Christian We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience In Wicklow and West Kerry J.
