Introduction to Data Mining for the Life

Sciences Rob Sullivan, 2011-12-26 Data mining provides a set of new techniques to integrate, synthesize and analyze data uncovering the hidden patterns that exist within. Traditionally techniques such as kernel learning, methods, pattern recognition and data mining have been the domain of researchers in areas such as artificial intelligence but leveraging these tools, techniques and concepts against your data asset to identify problems early, understand interactions that exist and highlight previously unrealized relationships through the combination of these different disciplines can provide significant value for the investigator and her organization.

Knowledge Exploration in Life Science Informatics Jesús A. López, Emilio Benfenati, Werner Dubitzky, 2005-01-27 This volume of the Springer Lecture Notes in Computer Science series contains the contributions presented at the International Symposium on Knowledge Exploration in Life Science Informatics (KELSI 2004) held in Milan, Italy, 25-26 November 2004. The two main objectives of the symposium were: To explore the symbiosis between information and knowledge technologies and various life science disciplines such as biochemistry, biology, neuroscience, medical research, social sciences and so on; To investigate the synergy among different life science informatics areas including cheminformatics, bioinformatics, neuroinformatics, medical informatics, systems biology, sociomics and others. Modern life sciences investigate phenomena and systems at the level of molecules, cells, tissues, organisms and populations. Typical areas of interest include natural selection, development, disease, behavior, cognition and consciousness. This quest is generating an overwhelming and fast growing amount of data, information and knowledge reflecting living systems at different levels of organization. Future progress of the life sciences will depend on effective and efficient management, sharing and exploitation of these resources by computational means.
