

Raising a teenager is hard...

kept raining off and on Creeks around the village were flooded and then on the seventh day the block of diamond emerged followed by the powerful bang It happened just as people were eating their dinner so that both old and young could bear witness to it The second part of the book deals with my adventures to the city of Fort Lamy at age eleven Today it is called N Djamena Driven by hardship and in search of better opportunities in the city I hoped to find work to help myself However because I was underage I could not find work and I became a burden to my aunt Aged fifteen and expecting LH1 the novelty soon wore off I left Tchad and followed my friend to Sudan In Sudan I spent close to six years struggling trying to get into school but I proved to be a failure I decided to change my nationality to become a refugee from Angola I registered at UNHCR and my status as a refugee from Angola was recognized I asked for education and they took me to Rumbek Secondary School I finished and got a scholarship from Sudan Council of Churches to study theology The word theology sounded like zoology and I was excited that I was going to study zoology but it turned out to be theology I had never come across the word theology or knew what it meant But I had learned zoology in geography class I was sent to Saint Paul Unity Theological College in Limuru Kenya I spent four years there finishing my studies Giffin Bible College in Doleib Hill in Malakal Sudan now South Sudan offered me a teaching position There I met William Bill the principal director and his wife Lois his assistant I taught for three years Based on the merits of my behavior teaching performance and relationship with my students they offered me a scholarship to the Interdenominational Theological Center in the United States of America
