

Robert Browning (1812-1889) was heavily influenced in his youth by his father's extensive collection of books and art. His father was a bank clerk and accumulated thousands of books, some of which were hundreds of years old and written in languages such as Greek and Hebrew. By the time he was five, it was said that Browning could already read and write well. He was an ardent admirer of the poet Shelley.

Synopsis • Duke is showing a painting of his dead wife to a visitor • Has it hidden behind a curtain – makes the visitor sit down to admire it • Praises the artist who painted it • Points out duchess' blush – suggests she was flirting and being complimented • Laments over wife being "too easily pleased" – criticises her for appearing to favour other men • Claims he was not eloquent enough to tell her to stop • So he had orders for her to be killed (this is an implication and not an explicit statement) • Then discusses with the visitor arrangements for his next marriage • Points out statue upon leaving thereby showing his egotistical nature

MY LAST DUCHESS "ambiguity from outset 'last' – final or previous?"

That's my last Duchess painted on the wall, * objectification
Looking as if she were alive. I call * euphemism for death
That piece a wonder, now; Fra Pandolf's hands * boastful of his connections
Worked busily a day, and there she stands.
Will't please you sit and look at her? I said * commands disguised as requests
"Fra Pandolf" by design, for never read
Strangers like you that pictured countenance,
The depth and passion of its earnest glance, * her "glance" still perturbs him
But to myself they turned (since none puts by The curtain I have drawn for you, but I)
And seemed as they would ask me, if they durst,
How such a glance came there; so, not the first
Are you to turn and ask thus. Sir, 'twas not
Her husband's presence only, called that spot
Of joy into the Duchess' cheek; perhaps remarkable advances in their work Lutyens had become the first British composer to use 12 note technique in her Chamber Concerto No 1 1939 40 Maconchy had composed four string quartets of outstanding quality and was busy rethinking the genre and Williams had won recognition as a composer with great flair for orchestral writing with her Fantasia on Welsh Nursery Tunes 1940 and Sea Sketches 1944 In the following years Lutyens Maconchy and Williams went on to compose music of striking quality and to attain prominent positions within the British music scene Their respective achievements broke through the sound ceiling challenging many of the traditional assumptions which accompanied music by female composers Rhiannon Mathias traces the development of these three important composers through analysis of selected works The book draws upon previously unexplored material as well as radio and television interviews with the composers themselves and with their contemporaries The musical analysis and contextual material lead to a re evaluation of the composers positions in the context of twentieth century British music history
