Promoting Innovation, Productivity and Industrial Growth and Reducing Poverty Maureen Mackintosh,Joanna Chataway,Marc Wuyts,2021-04-26 Development and the ending of mass poverty require a massive increase in productive capabilities and production in developing countries Some countries notably in Asia are achieving this Yet pro poor aid policies especially for the least developed countries operate largely without reference to policy thinking on the promotion of innovation for productivity growth Conversely policy makers and researchers on innovation and industrial policies tend to know little about the potential for social protection to support innovation and productivity improvement This book aims to focus attention on this gulf between research on innovation and on poverty reduction and to identify some of its policy consequences to set out some ways in which this gulf can be bridged analytically and empirically and to contribute to the creation of an agenda for further research and an understanding of the urgency of the implied rethinking The first two chapters provide sustained arguments for embedding social policy thinking in much more productivist frameworks of thought that focus on raising productivity and employment and for identifying growth theories that can incorporate satisfactory understandings of innovation and employment upgrading A set of chapters then tackle these broad themes in the context of health addressing the interlinked issues of innovation health inequity and associated impoverishment The final set of chapters examines the challenge of creating industrial policies that generate both innovation and employment using and going beyond concepts of systems of innovation

Equality in Asia-Pacific Phil C. W. Chan,2014-02-04 In 1948 the United Nations General Assembly proclaimed the Universal Declaration of Human Rights stating every human being's right of equality in dignity and right However notwithstanding recognition by the international community of its importance and codification in numerous national and sub national constitutions and legislation reinforced by various multilateral and regional human rights treaties the right of equality continues to be unable to take complete firm hold in all regions and countries Evidence as presented by the insightful papers in this collection published initially as a Special Double Issue of The International Journal of Human Rights dedicated to exploring the place of equality in Asia Pacific societies suggests that although progress is being made the right of equality has not yet fully materialized both in law and in reality in the world's most populous region Many factors particularly entrenched cultural heritage and practices the lingering effects of colonialism and newly found independence and above all pervasive ignorance and prejudices continue to impede the recognition development and protection of equality in this region Of course equality a normative right and entitlement by virtue of our humanity has neither been fully achieved in societies outside the region Such neo colonial thinking in fact perpetuates and assists in the subjugation of the right of equality in the Asia Pacific Region as a matter of relevance and concern only to Western countries Accordingly we hope that our discussions will also be able to shed light and generate reflections on realities outside the region as interlinked with our aim The Editor's book fee has been donated to the UNICEF Tsunami Fund This book was previously published as a special issue of The International Journal of Human Rights

Land-Atmospheric Research Applications in South and Southeast Asia Krishna Prasad Vadrevu, Toshimasa Ohara, Chris Justice, 2018-03-26 This edited volume sheds new light on the impact of rapid Land Use Cover Changes LU CC on greenhouse gases GHG's and aerosol emissions in South and Southeast Asia Several countries in South Southeast Asia have the highest population growth rates in the world which is the main cause for LU CC Conversion of dense forests to agricultural areas and then to residential and urban areas is most commonly observed in South Southeast Asian countries with a significant release of GHG's and aerosols The book showcases several case studies on the use of remote sensing and geospatial technologies to quantify biomass burning and air pollution impacts aerosol pollution LU CC and impacts on ecosystem services The book also includes articles on regional initiatives in research capacity building and training The authors of this book are international experts in the field and their contributions highlight significant drivers and impacts of air pollution in South Southeast Asia Readers will discover the latest tools and techniques in particular the use of satellite remote sensing and geospatial technologies for quantifying GHG's aerosols and pollution episodes in this region Sitting in Judgment Penny Darbyshire, 2011-09-30 The public image of judges has been stuck in a time warp they are invariably depicted in the media and derided in public bars up and down the country as privately educated Oxbridge types usually out of touch and more often than not as old men These and other stereotypes the judge as a pervert the judge as a right wing monster have dogged the judiciary long since any of them ceased to have any basis in fact Indeed the limited research that was permitted in the 1960s and 1970s tended to reinforce several of these stereotypes Moreover occasional high profile incidents in the courts elaborated with the help of satirists such as Private Eye and Monty Python have ensured that the old white Tory judge caricature not only survives but has come to be viewed as incontestable Since the late 1980s the judiciary has changed largely as a result of the introduction of training and new and more transparent methods of recruitment and appointment But how much has it changed and what are the courts like after decades of judicial reform Given unprecedented access to the whole range of courts from magistrates courts to the Supreme Court Penny Darbyshire spent seven years researching the judges accompanying them in their daily work listening to their conversations observing their handling of cases and the people who come before them and asking them frank and searching questions about their lives careers and ambitions What emerges is without doubt the most revealing and compelling picture of the modern judiciary in England and Wales ever seen From it we learn that not only do the old stereotypes not hold but that modern baby boomer judges are more representative of the people they serve and that the reforms are working But this new book also gives an unvarnished glimpse of the modern courtroom which shows a legal system under stress lacking resources but facing an ever increasing caseload This book will be essential reading for anyone wishing to know about the experience of modern judging the education training and professional lives of judges and the current state of the courts and judiciary in England and Wales
