Catskill Mountains have been repeatedly and dramatically transformed by New York City In Making Mountains David Stradling shows the transformation of the Catskills landscape as a collaborative process one in which local and urban hands capital and ideas have come together to reshape the mountains and the communities therein This collaboration has had environmental economic and cultural consequences Early on the Catskills were an important source of natural resources

Later when New York City needed to expand its water supply engineers helped direct the city toward the Catskills claiming that the mountains offered the purest and most cost effective waters By the 1960s New York had created the great reservoir and aqueduct system in the mountains that now supplies the city with 90 percent of its water The Catskills also served as a critical space in which the nation s ideas about nature evolved Stradling describes the great influence writers and artists had upon urban residents especially the painters of the Hudson River School whose ideal landscapes created expectations about how rural America should appear By the mid 1800s urban residents had turned the Catskills into an important vacation ground and by the late 1800s the Catskills had become one of the premiere resort regions in the nation In the mid twentieth century the older Catskill resort region was in steep decline but the Jewish Borscht Belt in the southern Catskills was thriving The automobile revitalized mountain tourism and residence and increased the threat of suburbanization of the historic landscape Throughout each of these significant incarnations urban and rural residents worked in a rough collaboration though not without conflict to reshape the mountains and American ideas about rural landscapes and nature California Southland ,1926 Playwork in Practice Ali Wood,Julia Sexton,Jacky Kilvington,2024-09-05 Playwork in Practice introduces the ways that playwork can be used across the children s workforce including carers qualified teachers parents and other adults You will learn the theoretical and practical aspects of the playwork approach supported by a wealth of research evidence this book is for anyone studying playwork or looking to use it in their own practice The chapters focus on the following areas where the playwork approach can be applied behaviour adult expectations relationships and inclusion space environment and outdoors age risk and resilience emotions and resilience health well being and gender Using a reflexive reflective approach the book offers vivid descriptions of interactions between children and adults in a range of different circumstances and analyses these interactions critically Each chapter includes a real life story with analysis based on the authors conversations with carers playworkers parents and other adults The chapters also include reflective questions
