The Politics of Revenue Bargaining in Africa Anne Mette Kjær, Marianne S. Ulriksen, Ane Karoline Bak, 2023-11-30 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Academic and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations This book examines the politics of revenue bargaining in Africa at a time when attention to domestic revenue mobilization has expanded immensely Measures to increase taxes and other revenues can but do not always lead to a process of bargaining where revenue providers negotiate for some kind of return This book offers in depth analyses of micro instances of revenue bargaining across five African countries Mozambique Senegal Tanzania Togo and Uganda The case studies all draw on a common theoretical framework combining the fiscal contract theory with the political settlement approach which enables a systematic exploration into what triggers revenue bargaining how these processes unfold and finally if and when they result in an agreement whether that is a fiscal contract or not From these empirically rich case narratives emerges a story of how power and initial bargaining position influence not only whether bargaining occurs in the first place but also the processes and their outcomes Less resourceful taxpayers find it harder to raise their voice but in some cases even these groups manage to ally with other civil society groups to protest tax reforms they perceive as unfair Indirect taxes such as VAT often trigger protests as do sudden changes in tax practices Revenue providers rarely call for improved services in return for paying tax which would be expected to nurture the foundation for a fiscal social contract Instead revenue providers are more likely to negotiate for tax reductions implying that governments efforts to increase revenue are impeded Indeed we find many instances of state society reciprocity when ruling elites try to be responsive to revenue providers demands The Politics of Revenue Bargaining in Africa hence provides insights into the nature and dynamics not only of revenue bargaining but of policymaking in general as well as its implications for state society reciprocity in Africa

Decentralization and Constitutionalism in Africa Charles M. Fombad, Nico Steytler, 2019-09-10 This collection of essays assesses the efforts of African governments to constitutionalise decentralisation be it in the form of federalism local government or traditional authorities Since the end of the Cold War jurisdictions across Africa have witnessed an ostensible return to multi party democracy within the paradigm of constitutionalism and the rule of law Linked to the democratisation process many countries took steps to decentralize power by departing from the heavily centralized systems inherited from colonial regimes The centralization of power typically characterized by the personalization and concentration of power in the hands of leaders and privileged elites in capital cities mostly resulted in repressive regimes and fragile states As decentralisation is a response to these challenges this volume analyses the dynamic relationship between the efforts to implement decentralization and presence or absence of constitutionalism This volume examines a variety of forms and degrees of decentralization found across Africa It advances a new understanding of trends and patterns and facilitates the exchange of ideas among African governments and scholars about the critical role that decentralisation may play in democratization of and constitutionalism in Africa

Decolonizing Civil Society in Mozambique Tanja Kleibl, 2021-08-26 By demonstrating that Western conceptions of civil society have provided the framework for interpreting societies in the Global South Decolonizing Civil Society in Mozambique argues that it is only through a critical deconstruction of these concepts that we can start to re balance global power relationships both in academic discourse and in development practices Examining the exclusionary discourses framing the support for Western type NGOs in the development discourse often to the exclusion of local social actors this book dissects mainstream contemporary ideas about civil society and finds a new means by which to identify local forms of social action often based in traditional structures and spiritual discourses Outlining new conceptual ideas for an alternative framing of Mozambique s civil society Kleibl proposes a series of fresh theoretical issues and questions alongside empirical research moving towards a series of new policy and practice arguments for rethinking and decolonizing civil society in the Global South

Reducing Geographical Imbalances of Health Workers in Sub-Saharan Africa Christophe Lemiere,Christopher Herbst,Negda Jahanshahi,Ellen Smith,Agnes Soucat,2010-12-01 The human resources crisis in the health sector has been gathering attention on the global stage To date however most of this attention has focused on shortages of health human resources HRH at the national level At least as important are problems at the sub national level Massive geographic and skill mix imbalances are reflected in the perilous undersupply of HRH in most rural areas Virtually all Sub Saharan African countries suffer from significant geographic imbalances Very little substantive information or documentation exists on the problem Even less is known about the lessons from policies aimed at addressing urban rural human resource imbalances let alone experiences of Sub Saharan Africa countries with such policies There also appears to be a disconnect between the objectives and efforts of policymakers on the one hand and the functioning of national health labor markets and labor market behavior on the other hand This disconnect hinders policy effectiveness and the efficient utilization of resources intended to narrow urban rural inequities In Sub Saharan Africa government policies often limited to the management of public sector vacancies appear to be elaborated prescribed and implemented independently of labor market considerations Partly as a result they are unable to effectively address urban rural imbalances which are an outcome of labor market dynamics This report discusses and analyzes labor market dynamics and outcomes including unemployment worker shortages and urban rural imbalances of categories of health workers from a labor economics perspective It then use insights from this perspective as a basis for elaborating policy options that incorporate the underlying labor market forces The goal of the study is to address undesirable outcomes including urban rural HRH imbalances more effectively The book is thus suitable for researchers policy analysts and policy makers with an interest in understanding and improving the allocation of human resources for health in the developing world

Stocker,Qin Dahe,2012-05-28 This Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change Special Report IPCC SREX explores the challenge of understanding and managing the risks of climate extremes to advance climate change adaptation Extreme weather and climate events interacting with exposed and vulnerable human and natural systems can lead to disasters Changes in the frequency and severity of the physical events affect disaster risk but so do the spatially diverse and temporally dynamic patterns of exposure and vulnerability Some types of extreme weather and climate events have increased in frequency or magnitude but populations and assets at risk have also increased with consequences for disaster risk Opportunities for managing risks of weather and climate related disasters exist or can be developed at any scale local to international Prepared following strict IPCC procedures SREX is an invaluable assessment for anyone interested in climate extremes environmental disasters and adaptation to climate change including policymakers the private sector and academic researchers Cyclones in Southern Africa Godwell Nhamo,Kaitano Dube,2021-07-24 The subject of tropical cyclones in Southern Africa also known as hurricanes or typhoons in other regions of the world has been growing over the past few decades However there is still limited literature on foundational and fundamental topics on the matter To this end this book addresses this gap citing some examples from both historic and recent tropical cyclones The book presents meteorological and climatic aspects of tropical cyclones including reviews on forecasting warning message dissemination and public response aspects of early warning systems with a focus on the Tropical Cyclones Idai and Kenneth Fundamentals in disaster risk reduction DRR are also discussed moving from the provisions of the Hyogo Framework for Action 2005 2015 to the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 2030 Climate change issues are central to the publication as well as the role of information and communication technologies in DRR and management The book also tackles some challenges and opportunities associated with the implementation of regional legal and institutional frameworks on DRR The book comes as part of a series with three volumes The other volumes include Cyclones in Southern Africa Vol 1 Interfacing the Catastrophic Impact of Cyclone Idai with SDGs in Zimbabwe and Cyclones in Southern Africa Vol 3 Implications for the Sustainable Development Goals To this end this book is suitable as a read for several professionals and disciplines such as tourism and hospitality studies economics sustainable development development studies environmental sciences arts geography life sciences politics planning and public health Strengthening and harmonizing food policy systems to achieve food security Babu, Suresh Chandra,Blom, Sylvia,2017-02-15 Understanding how various entities in a policy system at the national level can contribute to improved use of evidence in policy making Yet little research has focused in developing countries on how various actors and players in a policy system work together to achieve a set of policy goals In this paper we study the factors contributing to the effectiveness of a policy system The process of policy design adoption implementation and refinement requires an effective policy system as well as a capacitated and supportive institutional structure External actors both through technical and financial assistance often support policy systems in developing countries Poor coordination and harmonization of such assistance among various actors and players within the country can often result in undermining the very policy systems they try to strengthen This is typical in the African agricultural development process In this paper we develop a conceptual framework for understanding the policy and institutional architecture of food and agriculture policy system and for improving the coordination and harmonization of the roles of policy actors and players Applying the framework to Ghana we map and analyze the organizational contributions of various actors and their functional characteristics We show how such analysis can aid various policy actors in setting priorities and strategies for increasing their capacity and the effectiveness of their roles Finally we draw lessons for strengthening the food policy systems in developing countries through effective coordination among local and external actors
