Text A – Plastic and Our Oceans

30 marks

Sir David Attenborough: plastic and our oceans

Future of Plastic Broadcaster, conservationist and vice-president at Fauna & Flora International – Sir David speaks to us about ocean conservation and the global plastic challenge.

1 What do the oceans mean to you?

"I am sure I am not alone in having a great many fond memories associated with the sea, and the more I have come to learn about our blue planet, the more I have come to appreciate the oceans not only for their beauty, but as an absolutely vital resource that is critical for our very survival."

5 "I think, because the oceans are so vast and because they are so mysterious, there is a sense that somehow they are untouchable, and that what we do on land has no effect on them in any meaningful way. Not true, sadly."

Blue Planet II helped to put plastic pollution on the global agenda. How do you feel about that?

"Well, naturally I'm pleased! Not everybody has had the chance to visit these remote and astonishing places, and so I do think that our job as filmmakers is to inspire people with the wonders of the natural world, but also to help them understand the threat that our planet is facing."

"Why this topic has particularly captured the public imagination is hard to say, but it is clear that it has helped to build momentum for us to take action."

How serious do you think this issue is?

15 "It could hardly be more serious."

"I suppose, for me, the thing that is so worrying about plastic pollution in particular is that it is so utterly unnecessary. The plastic in our oceans could not have got there in the first place – much of it perhaps ought not to have even been manufactured. And yet it is there, in unbelievable quantities, causing untold harm to marine life."

20 "And, of course, once it is in the sea, it never really breaks down properly – it remains there for decades or even centuries. Unless we get grips with this quickly, we will soon find our oceans completely dominated by plastic. It is a prospect that hardly bears thinking about."

Do you think we are going in the right direction?

"There is no doubt that governments are having a profound impact on the marine environment. From 25 pollution levels are decreasing, but at the same time, we are gradually eroding away at the health of our oceans."

"How we address the threats is a difficult but important question. I'm afraid I don't know the answer, but I do take heart in the fact that there are a lot of people out there working on ways that we can deal with plastic waste. It won't be easy, by any means, but as long as we keep building on the momentum we have gained then I am hopeful we can make progress."
