Darwin's Finch Beak Activity

Objective/Skills: You are going to mimic how the variations in the beaks in Darwin's finches can shape their populations. The pasta, beans, and paper clips in this simulation will represent seeds for the finches. These seeds are an important food source and are necessary for survival. The different tools (fork, knife, and spoon) represent different alleles that impact the shape of the finch's beak. You will observe different levels of fitness throughout the trials in this lab. Natural selection (survival of the fittest) leads to evolution, or change in the gene pool, of a population.

Beak Shape Genetics: The shape of the finch's beak is determined by the alleles that it inherited from its parents. In this simulation, the dominant allele produces a fork-shaped beak. The recessive allele produces a knife-shaped beak. This gene for finches is incompletely dominant and finches that are heterozygous have a spoon-shaped beak.

1. Use the letter "A" to represent the three possible genotypes and identify what phenotype is produced from each genotype.

AA - Fork
Aa - Spoon
aa - Knife

2. Predict which beak shape will provide the greatest fitness for each "seed" type.

I predict that the spoon beak shape will be the most fit for eating pasta.

I predict that the fork beak shape will be the most fit for eating paper clips.

I predict that the spoon beak shape will be the most fit for eating beans.

Materials: Should be a bulleted list. Include numbers, sizes, etc.

Forks	Knives	Spoons	50 pieces of pasta	50 paper clips	50 beans	paper cups
-------	--------	--------	--------------------	----------------	----------	------------

Procedure:

1. There will be different groups containing 3 students. Each group member will be assigned a different "beak adaptation" or shape and must keep their "beak" for the entire lab. (No switching between trials!!!)
2. You will have 1 minute to do each trial, there will be three trials (1 for each of the "seeds": pasta, paper clips, beans).
3. Start trial #1 with 1 paper cup of 50 seeds. Carefully scatter the "seeds" all over the table. Do NOT let any fall on the floor. You and your lab partners will have 1 minute to "eat" as many "seeds" as you can with your "beaks" by placing them in your own collection cups. You can only use ONE hand.
4. At the end of 1 minute, record the number of "seeds" you ate (these should be in your own cups) and put your data into your chart for that trial. Copy the number of "seeds" your lab partners ate with their "beaks" on the chart for that trial.
5. Return the "seeds" to the original cups and then repeat steps 4-6 for all 3 trials. Record all data in the data table.
6. Analyze your data by comparing how fit for the environment each "beak" was, compared to the other "beaks" in your lab group.

The New Mechanical Philosophy Stuart Glennan,2017-07-26 The New Mechanical Philosophy argues for a new image of nature and of science one that understands both natural and social phenomena to be the product of mechanisms and that casts the work of science as an effort to discover and understand those mechanisms Drawing on an expanding literature on mechanisms in physical life and social sciences Stuart Glennan offers an account of the nature of mechanisms and of the models used to represent them A key quality of mechanisms is that they are particulars located at different places and times with no one just like another The crux of the scientist s challenge is to balance the complexity and particularity of mechanisms with our need for representations of them that are abstract and general This volume weaves together metaphysical and methodological questions about mechanisms Metaphysically it explores the implications of the mechanistic framework for our understanding of classical philosophical questions about the nature of objects properties processes events causal relations natural kinds and laws of nature Methodologically the book explores how scientists build models to represent and understand phenomena and the mechanisms responsible for them Using this account of representation Glennan offers a scheme for characterizing the enormous diversity of things that scientists call mechanisms and explores the scope and limits of mechanistic explanation

Science and Faith? C. John Collins, 2003-10-15 Many believers worry that science undermines the Christian faith Instead of fearing scientific discovery Jack Collins believes that Christians should delight in the natural world and study it God's truth will stand against any challenge and will enrich the very scientific studies that we fear Collins first defines faith and science shows their relation and explains what claims each has concerning truth Then he applies the biblical teaching on creation to the topics of conflict between faith and science including the age of the earth evolution and miracles He considers what it means to live in a created world This book is for anyone looking for a Christian engagement with science without technical jargon

The Ecology and Evolution of Heliconius Butterflies Chris D. Jiggins, 2017-01-27 The Heliconius butterflies are one of the classic systems in evolutionary biology and have contributed hugely to our understanding of evolution over the last 150 years Their dramatic radiation and remarkable mimicry has fascinated biologists since the days of Bates Wallace and Darwin The Ecology and Evolution of Heliconius Butterflies is the first thorough and accessible treatment of the ecology genetics and behaviour of these butterflies exploring how they offer remarkable insights into tropical biodiversity The book starts by outlining some of the evolutionary questions that Heliconius research has helped to address then moves on to an overview of the butterflies themselves and their ecology and behaviour before focussing on wing pattern evolution and finally speciation Richly illustrated with 32 colour plates this book makes the extensive scientific literature on Heliconius butterflies accessible to a wide audience of professional ecologists evolutionary biologists entomologists and amateur collectors
