China's New Role in African Politics Christof Hartmann, Nele Noesselt, 2019-10-21 China's rise to global power status in recent decades has been accompanied by deepening economic relationships with Africa with the New Silk Road's extension to Sub-Saharan Africa as the latest step leading to much academic debate about the influence of Chinese business in the continent. However, China's engagement with African states at the political and diplomatic level has received less attention in the literature. This book investigates the impact of Chinese policies on African politics, asking how China deals with political instability in Africa and in turn how Africans perceive China to be helping or hindering political stability. While China officially operates with a foreign policy strategy which conceives of Africa as one integrated monolithic area with the Forum on China-Africa Cooperation (FOCAC) the flagship of inter-continental cooperation.

this book highlights the plurality of context specific interaction patterns between China and African elites demonstrating how China's role and relevance has differently evolved according to whether African countries are resource rich and geostrategically important from the Chinese perspective or not. By looking comparatively at a range of different country cases the book aims to promote a more thorough understanding of how China reacts to political stability and instability and in which ways the country contributes to domestic political dynamics and stability within African states. China's New Role in African Politics will be of interest to researchers from across Political Science International Relations International Law and Economy Security Studies and African and Chinese Studies. The Eagle and the Springbok Adekeye Adebajo, 2023-06-23 Nigeria and South Africa account for about a third of Africa's economic might and have led much of its conflict management initiatives over the last three decades. Both account for at least 60 per cent of the economy of their respective sub regions in West and Southern Africa. The success of political and economic integration in Africa thus rests heavily on the shoulders of these two regional powers who have both collaborated and competed with each other in a complex relationship that is Africa's most indispensable. Nigeria remains among South Africa's largest trading partners in Africa while both countries have cooperated in building the institutions of the African Union (AU). Both countries have also had a tremendous cultural impact on the continent in terms of Nollywood movies and the expansion of South Africa's corporate sector into Africa. This book assesses Nigeria-South Africa relations in the areas of politics economics and culture within the context of rivalries and hegemony. Biographical profiles are also provided of important figures from both countries.

Drum, 2006 Civil Engineering, 2004 International Directory of Arts, 2007 Challenges Affecting the Standard and Technical Compliance of Radio Communication in Tshwane Fire Brigade, 2018 This study explored the standard of radio communication of the City of Tshwane Fire Brigade in relation to international standards. It also evaluated the functionality of the two way communication radio used by the City of Tshwane Fire Brigade and its resilience to withstand extreme conditions of the firefighting environment such as heat from flashover conditions at 50 kW/m². In the experiments three radios were exposed to Thermal Class 3 maximum temperature of 260 °C and heat flux of 10 kW/m². Radio A's screen deformed slightly and the outer covering stayed intact after five minutes and could still make voice transmissions. Radio B's covering material and screen started to deform after three minutes but could still make voice transmissions after five minutes.

Radio C's covering also deformed and the screen was affected and there was no voice transmission for two minutes after the five minutes in the cone calorimeter. Furthermore, the study investigated the network coverage and the signal strength of two-way radios, including technical challenges and limitations of the two-way radios themselves. Buildings that were chosen for the two-way radio voice transmissions tests gave completely different results. The average voice transmission reading from Radio A was 70%, Radio B was 60%, and Radio C was 54% in randomly selected buildings in Pretoria CBD. The study also scrutinised human factors in two-way radio communication by firefighters, particularly training and procedures in relation to practice throughout international firefighting communities. The study also showed that over 90% of firefighters did not do refresher training on radio communications and over 40% had never received training at all. However, 70% of management personnel felt strongly that radio communication training should be incorporated into orientation training of the new appointees, and more than 50% were in support of refresher training.

To this end, the City of Tshwane needs to develop adequate capacity for rendering reliable and efficient emergency and rescue services by utilizing modern technology and highly innovative methods and strategies. The purpose of the study was to identify and quantify gaps in the quality of emergency and rescue services that were provided to residents of Erasmuskloof, Centurion, and Hazelwood by the City of Tshwane. One of the key aims of the study was to estimate gap scores that could be used for the assessment of discrepancies between perceptions and expectations among the residents.
