Feeling, Thinking, and Talking L. David Ritchie, 2022-09-15 The way the brain body and mind interact with social structure to shape communication has so far not received the attention it deserves This book addresses this gap by providing a novel account of communication as a social biological and neurological force Combining theories from communication studies and psycholinguistics and drawing on biological and evolutionary perspectives it shows how communication is inherently both biological and social and that language and the neural systems that support it have evolved in response to a complex social environment It introduces a clear set of terms based on current research and illustrates key concepts using real life examples from everyday conversation speaking to a number of current debates around the evolutionary and biological basis of language and the relationship between language cognition and environment Thought provoking and engaging it will change the way we think about the relationship between communication and cognition

Understanding the World Through Narrative Steve Bowkett, Tony Hitchen, 2023-10-02 While many educational books focus on creative and critical thinking skills this ground breaking work is the first to deal specifically with the ability to understand question and evaluate information presented broadly speaking in story form Story or narrative is central to our understanding of and interaction with the world around us We only have to think of the mini stories encapsulated in many advertisements the way that topics in science the story of human evolution for example in history and other subjects present themselves the power of myths and legends to act as guides to moral behaviour and the pervasive way that gossip rumour and superstition can spread to recognise the benefits of heightening such awareness in young learners Understanding the World Through Narrative explores the narrative structure of fiction but uses this as a template to show how the story form appears in mythology and modern urban folklore science history the media including advertising in our internal dialogues stories we tell ourselves about ourselves and others and how narrative structure can be used in curriculum planning to enhance children's learning. The book contains over 160 thinking, discussing, researching activities for use in the classroom and as project work. Chapters can be used independently although they are arranged with increasing degrees of sophistication and challenge. This fascinating work is an essential resource for any teacher of upper primary and lower secondary students covering not only children's evolving intellectual ability and promoting curiosity and critical engagement but also enhancing their mental and emotional wellbeing.
