Law and Psychiatry Michael S. Moore, 1984-03-30 This book is about the competing images of man offered us by the disciplines of law and psychiatry Michael Moore describes the legal view of persons as rational and autonomous and defends it from the challenges presented by three psychiatric ideas that badness is illness that the unconscious rules our mental life and that a person is a community of selves more than a unified single self Using the tools of modern philosophy he attempts to show that the moral metaphysical foundations of our law are not eroded by these challenges of psychiatry The book thus seeks through philosophy to go beneath the centuries old debates between lawyers and psychiatrists and to reveal their hidden agreement about the nature of man Some attention is paid to practical legal and psychiatric issues of contemporary concern such as the proper definition of mental illness for psychiatric purposes and the proper definition of legal insanity for legal purposes This book was first announced for publication in hard covers in the Press's January to July seasonal list

The Bilingual Text Jan Walsh Hokenson, Marcella Munson, 2014-06-03 Bilingual texts have been left outside the mainstream of both translation theory and literary history. Yet the tradition of the bilingual writer moving between different sign systems and audiences to create a text in two languages is a rich and venerable one going back at least to the Middle Ages. The self-translated bilingual text was commonplace in the multilingual world of medieval and early modern Europe, frequently bridging Latin and the vernaculars. While self-translation persisted among cultured elites, it diminished during the consolidation of the nation-states in the long era of nationalistic monolingualism, only to resurge in the postcolonial era. The Bilingual Text makes a first step toward providing the fields of translation studies and comparative literature with a comprehensive account of literary self-translation in the West. It tracks the shifting paradigms of bilinguality across the centuries and addresses the urgent questions that the bilingual text raises for translation theorists today: Is each part of the bilingual text a separate original creation, or is each incomplete without the other? Is self-translation a unique genre? Can either version be split off into a single language or literary tradition? How can two linguistic versions of a text be fitted into standard models of foreign and domestic texts and cultures? Because such texts defeat standard categories of analysis, The Bilingual Text reverses the usual critical gaze, highlighting not dissimilarities but continuities across versions, allowing for dissimilarities within orders of correspondence and englobing the literary as well as linguistic and cultural dimensions of the text. Emphasizing the arcs of historical change in concepts of language and translation that inform each case study, The Bilingual Text examines the perdurance of this phenomenon in Western societies and literatures.
