Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature ,1915 A Practical Guide to Cluster Randomised Trials in Health

Services Research Sandra Eldridge,Sally Kerry,2012-02-20 Cluster randomised trials are trials in which groups or clusters of individuals are randomly allocated to different forms of treatment In health care these trials often compare different ways of managing a disease or promoting healthy living in contrast to conventional randomised trials which randomise individuals to different treatments classically comparing new drugs with a placebo They are increasingly common in health services research This book addresses the statistical practical and ethical issues arising from allocating groups of individuals or clusters to different interventions Key features Guides readers through the stages of conducting a trial from recruitment to reporting Presents a wide range of examples with particular emphasis on trials in health services research and primary care with both principles and techniques explained Topics are specifically presented in the order in which investigators think about issues when they are designing a trial Combines information on the latest developments in the field together with a practical guide to the design and implementation of cluster randomised trials Explains principles and techniques through numerous examples including many from the authors own experience Includes a wide range of references for those who wish to read further This book is intended as a practical guide written for researchers from the health professions including doctors psychologists and allied health professionals as well as statisticians involved in the design execution analysis and reporting of cluster randomised trials Those with a more general interest will find the plentiful examples illuminating
