Investigating Complex Phenomena: Bridging between Systems Thinking and Modeling in Science Education Tom Bielik, Moritz Krell, Laura Zangori, Orit Ben Zvi Assaraf, 2023-11-15

Understanding the complexity of the natural world and making sense of phenomena is one of the main goals of science and science education When investigating complex phenomena such as climate change or pandemic outbreaks students are expected to engage in systems thinking by considering the boundaries of the investigated system identifying the relevant components and their interactions and exploring system attributes such as hierarchical organization dynamicity feedback loops and emergence Scientific models are tools that support students reasoning and understanding of complex systems and students are expected to develop their modeling competence and to engage in the modeling process by constructing testing revising and using models to explain and predict phenomena Computational modeling tools for example provide students with the opportunity to explore big data run simulations and investigate complex systems Therefore both systems thinking and modeling approaches are important for science education when investigating complex phenomena

Reskilling America Katherine S. Newman, Hella Winston, 2016-04-19 From Katherine Newman award winning author of No Shame in My Game and sociologist Hella Winston a sharp and irrefutable call to reenergize this nation s long neglected system of vocational training After decades of off shoring and downsizing that have left blue collar workers obsolete and stranded the United States is now on the verge of an industrial renaissance But we don t have a skilled enough labor pool to fill the positions that will be created which are in many cases technically demanding and require specialized skills A decades long series of idealistic educational policies with the expressed goal of getting every student to go to college has left a generation of potential workers out of the system Touted as a progressive egalitarian institution providing opportunity even to those with the greatest need the American secondary school system has in fact deepened existing inequalities We can do better argue acclaimed sociologists Katherine Newman and Hella Winston Taking a page from the successful experience of countries like Germany and Austria where youth unemployment is a mere 7% they call for a radical reevaluation of the idea of vocational training long discredited as an instrument of tracking The United States can prepare a new high performance labor force if we revamp our school system to value industry apprenticeship and rigorous technical education By doing so we will not only be able to meet the growing demand for skilled employees in dozens of sectors where employers decry the absence of well trained workers we will make the American Dream accessible to all
