University Rankings Jung Cheol Shin, Robert K. Toutkoushian, Ulrich Teichler, 2011-06-06 This ground breaking and exhaustive analysis of university ranking surveys scrutinizes their theoretical bases methodological issues societal impact and policy implications providing readers with a deep understanding of these controversial comparators The authors propose that university rankings are misused by policymakers and institutional leaders alike They assert that these interested parties overlook the highly problematic internal logic of ranking methodologies even as they obsess over the surveys assessment of their status The result is that institutions suffer from short termism realigning their resources to maximize their relative rankings While rankings are widely used in policy and academic discussions this is the first book to explore the theoretical and methodological issues of ranking itself It is a welcome contribution to an often highly charged debate Far from showing how to manipulate the system this collection of work by key researchers aims to enlighten interested parties

Forms of institutional governance critically shape the culture creativity and academic outcomes of higher education The book provides a new updated and research based account of the changing face of the governance of British higher education Historically British universities were deemed amongst the most if not the most autonomous in Europe with governance rooted in their collegial disciplinary structures This assessment must now be decisively revised although the belief systems deriving from it remain buried deep in university culture Drawing on the authors investigation of the governance of higher education in the four UK nations including extensive on site interviews and discussions with government policy makers the book shows how global national and system level pressures have changed the face both of the external governance of higher education institutions and how universities govern themselves Government priorities new funding methodologies and marketisation have all played a part in this process Since the mid 1980s there have been drastic changes in the external environment reinforced by the increasing diversity within the higher education system as a whole and between the national sub systems In addition a new private sector of higher education has been created New forms of institutional governance are emerging which may have profound effects on research and teaching and on academic creativity and innovation The study discusses the effects of a state regulated system compared with the more heterarchical system which preceded it It offers a comparison of the effects of devolved governance to Wales Scotland and Northern Ireland on the respective higher education systems and their impact on institutional governance The study concludes that England is becoming increasingly an outlier and discusses the long term implications for the coherence of a British higher education system
