E Jackson explains how the technology of alphabetic writing has determined the nature of the modern novel Jackson's analysis begins with the universal human act of oral storytelling While telling stories is fundamental to human experience writing is not Yet the novel perhaps more than any other literary form depends on writing In fact as Jackson shows quite clearly it is writing rather than print that most shapes the forms and contents of the genre Through striking new readings of works by Austen Mary Shelley Dickens Forster Woolf Lessing and McEwan Jackson reveals how the phenomena of speech and storytelling interact with the technological characteristics of writing He also explains how those interactions induced the generic changes in the novel from its eighteenth century beginnings to postmodernism and beyond His claims grounded in a contemporary understanding of human cognitive capacities and constraints offer a fresh interpretive approach to all written literature An essential text in the study of the written word The Technology of the Novel provides new insights into the evolving nature of one of the modern world's most popular narrative forms
