The state of Pennsylvania has a long history of providing quality education for all its citizens. In 1963, the state passed the Education Reform Act, which established the Department of Education. This act was a landmark in the state's history, as it was the first time that the state had a single department responsible for all public education. Since then, the department has worked to improve the quality of education for all students, and to ensure that every student has the opportunity to succeed. The department has also been instrumental in the development of the Keystone State Credit Recovery program, which allows students who have failed a course to earn credit for that course by completing a credit recovery program. This program is designed to help students who are struggling in a particular course to get back on track and earn the credit they need to move forward in their education.
