

Chapter 18 Nuclear Chemistry

Section 10.4 Fission and Fusion(pages 308–318)

This section discusses nuclear forces and the conversion of mass into energy. It also describes the nuclear processes of fission and fusion.

Reading Strategy (page 308)

Comparing and Contrasting As you read, contrast fission and fusion in the Venn diagram below by listing the ways they differ. For more information on this Reading Strategy, see the Reading and Study Skills in the Skills and Reference Handbook at the end of your textbook.

Nuclear Forces (pages 308–309)

- Describe the strong nuclear force. The strong nuclear force is the attractive force that binds protons and neutrons together in the nucleus.
- Is the following sentence true or false? Over very short distances, the strong nuclear force is much greater than the electric forces among protons. True
- Electric forces in atomic nuclei depend on the number of protons.
- Is the following sentence true or false? The strong nuclear force on a proton or neutron is much greater in a large nucleus than in a small nucleus. False
- All nuclei with 83 or more protons are radioactive.

Fission (pages 309–310)

- Describe fission. Fission is the splitting of an atomic nucleus into two smaller parts.
- Fission can produce very large amounts of energy from very small amounts of mass.

 process by which two or more atomic nuclei join together or fuse to form a single heavier nucleus During this process matter is not conserved because some of the mass of the fusing nuclei is converted to energy which is released The binding energy of the resulting nucleus is greater than the binding energy of each of the nuclei that fused to produce it Fusion is the process that powers active stars Creating the required conditions for fusion on Earth is very difficult to the point that it has not been accomplished at any scale for protium the common light isotope of hydrogen that undergoes natural fusion in stars In nuclear weapons some of the energy released by an atomic bomb fission bomb is used for compressing and heating a fusion fuel containing heavier isotopes of hydrogen and also sometimes lithium to the point of ignition At this point the energy released in the fusion reactions is enough to briefly maintain the reaction Fusion based nuclear power experiments attempt to create similar conditions using far lesser means although to date these experiments have failed to maintain conditions needed for ignition long enough for fusion to be a viable commercial power source There are many experiments examining the possibility of fusion power for electrical generation Nuclear fusion has great potential as a sustainable energy source This is due to the abundance of hydrogen on the planet and the inert nature of helium the nucleus which would result from the nuclear fusion of hydrogen atoms Unfortunately a controlled nuclear fusion reaction has not yet been achieved due to the temperatures required to sustain one In hot fusion it need a temperature of 4000 million degrees Without a minimum of 3000 million degrees we can't make the hot fusion reaction to obtain the nuclear power Today we have just 150 million degrees made To replace the lack of necessary temperature it uses various tricks Because obtaining the necessary huge temperature for hot fusion is still difficult it is time to focus us on cold nuclear fusion We need to bomb the fuel with accelerated deuterium nuclei The fuel will be made from heavy water and lithium The optimal proportion of lithium will be tested It would be preferable to keep fuel in the plasma state Research into developing controlled thermonuclear fusion for civil purposes also began in earnest in the 1950s and it continues to this day Two projects the National Ignition Facility and ITER are in the process of reaching breakeven after 60 years of design improvements developed from previous experiments The best results were obtained with the Tokamak type installations Fission and Fusion Lifeliqe, 2019 This lesson plan covers Nuclear energy is important both as a very large energy resource and as a source of carbon free energy. However incidents such as the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear disaster 2011, the Chernobyl disaster 1986 and the Three Mile Island accident 1979 have cast doubts on the future of nuclear fission as a major player in the future energy mix. This volume provides an excellent overview of the current situation regarding nuclear fission as well as a description of the enormous potential advantages offered by nuclear fusion including an essentially unlimited fuel supply with minimal environmental impact. Energy from the Nucleus focuses on the two main approaches to producing energy from the nucleus: fission and fusion. The chapters on nuclear fission cover the status of current and future generations of reactors as well as new safety requirements and the environmental impact of electricity production from nuclear fission. The chapters on nuclear fusion discuss both inertial confinement fusion and magnetic confinement fusion, including the new international fusion test facility ITER. The expertise of the authors, who are active participants in the respective technologies, ensures that the information provided is both reliable and current. Their views will no doubt enlighten our understanding of the future of energy from the nucleus.
