Death of the Flute Arthur J. Burks, 2011-09-16 Not always does the past bury its dead Out of the yellow waters of Pei Po came a strange vengeance to single out Dorus Noel in the tangle of New Yorks Chinatown excerpt China had left her mark upon Dorus Noel He thought of that now as he sat musing in his house on Mott Street in New York s Chinatown From somewhere out in the street or perhaps in a store next door a clock sounded the hour of three in the afternoon At the same time some of his own priceless clocks began to strike One of them he especially loved because it always gave him a smile It was a beautiful gem incrustated thing which had been given to Emperor Ch ien Lung by Louis Fifteenth of France and when it struck the hour eight tiny human figures in blue came out on its top and danced a tinkling minuet A second clock was all of glass save for its works which were surrounded like a serpent by a circular staircase When this clock struck three it did it in odd fashion A gold ball came through a hole in the fourth step and rolled down three steps making a tinkling noise At four o clock the ball fell a step further taking the additional hour to travel back up the circular stairway Now the one clock danced the minuet the other rolled its golded ball down the three steps thus striking the hour Dorus Noel sighed Thank all the gods he murmured that Chu Chul is dead He must be With my own eyes I saw his clutching yellow hand sink under the muddy waters of the Pei Ho at Tientsin and I waited for two months for his resurrection which did not transpire My work here in New York will be easy compared to the years long game of hide and seek with The Cricket Noel had formed the habit of talking to himself because he found it easier to think and he did not speak in Chinese because in China anybody who listened might have been a minion of Chu Chul Now he rose from his desk and strode to a mirror on the wall threading his way through the many treasures which filled his study He passed the red lacquer screen with its decorations of tiny bird feathers He circled the crooked screen just inside the door which kept out evil spirits because they could only travel in a straight line

War and Death in the Music of George Crumb Abigail Shupe, 2022-09-02 This book studies George Crumb's The Winds of Destiny 2004 and Black Angels 1970 as artifacts of collective memory and cultural trauma It situates these two pieces in Crumb's output and unpacks the complex methodologies needed to understand these pieces as contributions and challenges to traditional narratives of the Civil War and the Vietnam War The Winds of Destiny is shown to be a critical commentary on the legacy of American wars and militarism both concepts crucial to American identity The Winds of Destiny also acts as an ironic war memorial as a means of critiquing such concepts Black Angels has long been associated with the Vietnam War This book shows how this association began and how it endures through connections to iconic Vietnam War media including films and books Together these analyses show the legacy of trauma in American collective memory which is in a continuous crisis Crumb's musical critiques point to a need to resist conventional narratives and to begin to heal trauma on a collective level This book will be of interest to students of contemporary American music American studies and memory studies It benefits readers by newly situating Crumb's music within these three fields of study

Report of Meeting, 1901 The Forum, 1921 Plato's Dialectic at Play Kevin Corrigan, Elena Glazov-Corrigan, 2015-10-29 The Symposium is one of Plato's most accessible dialogues an engrossing historical document as well as an entertaining literary masterpiece By uncovering the structural design of the dialogue Plato's Dialectic at Play aims at revealing a Plato for whom the dialogical form was not merely ornamentation or philosophical methodology but the essence of philosophical exploration His dialectic is not only argument it is also play Careful analysis of each layer of the text leads cumulatively to a picture of the dialogue's underlying structure related to both argument and myth and shows that a dynamic link exists between Diotima's higher mysteries and the organization of the dialogue as a whole On this basis the authors argue that the Symposium with its positive theory of art contained in the ascent to the Beautiful may be viewed as a companion piece to the Republic with its negative critique of the role of art in the context of the Good Following Nietzsche's suggestion and applying criteria developed by Mikhail Bakhtin they further argue for seeing the Symposium as the first novel The book concludes with a comprehensive reevaluation of the significance of the Symposium and its place in Plato's thought generally touching on major issues in Platonic scholarship the nature of art the body-soul connection the problem of identity the relationship between mythos and logos Platonic love and the question of authorial writing and the vanishing signature of the absent Plato himself

A Death in the Rainforest Don Kulick, 2019-06-18 Perhaps the finest and most profound account of ethnographic fieldwork and discovery that has ever entered the anthropological literature The Wall Street Journal If you want to experience a profoundly different culture without the exhausting travel to say nothing of the cost this is an excellent choice The Washington Post As a young anthropologist Don Kulick went to the tiny village of Gapun in New Guinea to document the death of the native language Tayap He arrived knowing that you can't study a language without understanding the daily lives of the people who speak it how they talk to their children how they argue how they gossip how they joke Over the course of thirty years he returned again and again to document Tayap before it disappeared entirely and he found himself inexorably drawn into their world and implicated in their destiny Kulick wanted to tell the story of Gapuners one that went beyond the particulars and uses of their language that took full stock of their vanishing culture This book takes us inside the village as he came to know it revealing what it is like to live in a difficult to get to village of two hundred people carved out like a cleft in the middle of a tropical rainforest But A Death in the Rainforest is also an illuminating look at the impact of Western culture on the farthest reaches of the globe and the story of why this anthropologist realized finally that he had to give up his study of this language and this village An engaging deeply perceptive and brilliant interrogation of what it means to study a culture A Death in the Rainforest takes readers into a world that endures in the face of massive changes one that is on the verge of disappearing forever

The Biology of Death André Klarsfeld, Frédéric Revah, 2004 Why do we die Do all living creatures share this fate Is the body's slow degradation with the passage of time unavoidable or can the secrets of longevity be unlocked Over the past two decades scientists studying the workings of genes and cells have uncovered some of the clues necessary to solve these mysteries In this fascinating and accessible book two neurobiologists share the often surprising findings from that research including the possibility that aging and natural death may not be forever a certainty for most living beings Andr Klarsfeld and Frédéric Revah discuss in detail the latest scientific findings and views on death and longevity They challenge many popular assumptions such as the idea that the death of individual organisms serves to rejuvenate species or that death and sexual reproduction are necessarily linked Finally they describe current experimental approaches to postpone natural death in lower organisms as well as in mammals Are all organisms that survive until late in life condemned to a natural death as a consequence of aging even if they live in a well protected supportive environment The variability of the adult life span from a few hours for some insects to more than a millennium for the sequoia and thirteen times that for certain wild berry bushes challenges the notion that death is unavoidable Evolutionary theory helps explain why and how some species have achieved biological mechanisms that seemingly allow them to resist time Death cannot be understood without looking into cells the essential building blocks of life Intriguingly at the level of cells death is not always an accident it is often programmed as an indispensable aspect of life which benefits the organism as a whole
