Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were randomly assigned to either the exercise or control group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program. The control group performed no exercise. The subjects were assessed for physical fitness at baseline and at 12 weeks. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had significantly greater improvements in physical fitness than the control group. The exercise group had significantly greater improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and muscular endurance. The control group had no significant changes in physical fitness. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, 30-min, 3 times per week, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program is effective in improving the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women.

America Pathways to the Present, 1995 How Are You Going to Pay for That? Ryan Cooper, 2022-01-25 A compelling alternative view of the relationship between our politics and our economy Throughout America structural problems are getting worse Economic inequality is near Gilded Age heights the healthcare system is a mess and the climate crisis continues to grow Yet most ambitious policy proposals that might fix these calamities are dismissed as wastefully expensive by default From the kitchen table to Congress debates are punctuated with a familiar refrain How are you going to pay for that This question is designed to shut down policy pushes up front minimizing any interference with the free market It comes from neoliberalism an economic ideology that has overtaken both parties Proponents insist that markets are naturally occurring and apolitical and that too much manipulation of the economy will make our society fall apart Ryan Cooper argues that our society already is falling apart and the logically preposterous views of neoliberalism are to blame

Most progressives understand this instinctively but many lack the background knowledge to make effective economic counterarguments How Are You Going To Pay For That is filled with engaging discussions and detailed strategies that policymakers and citizens alike can use to assail even the most entrenched lines of neoliberal logic and start to undo these long held misconceptions Equal parts economic theory history and political polemic this is an essential roadmap for winning the key battles to come History of the United States Thomas V. In its portrait of an officer whose career bridged the distance between military generations, George W. Goethals and the Army also offers a compelling and complex interpretation of American military reform during the Gilded Age and Progressive Era and valuable insight into the larger dynamics of institutional change that are as relevant today as they were a century ago. Wall Street and the Fruited Plain James T. Wall, 2008

Wall Street and the Fruited Plain delves deep into the period known today as the Gilded Age. The last decades of the 19th century saw both industrial and agricultural explosions in the United States. However, the base metal beneath this glittering facade was comprised of sweat-soaked, underpaid laborers, many of whom had just splashed ashore from Europe's seething cauldrons. In the early years of the period, the nation underwent the wrenching challenge of Reconstruction, nominally resolved in the compromise of 1877. In the Gilded Age, America expanded both internally and externally. The frontier moved from Kansas to California. Trappers, miners, cattlemen, and finally homesteaders, with the help of a burgeoning railroad network, fanned out across the central plains and the western plateaus. Wall Street dominated not only the economic and social life of the country but the politics as well. A series of lackluster presidents between Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt facilitated this dominion, and by the end of Roosevelt's first Administration, America had become an adolescent headliner on the world stage. America's Past and Promise, 1998-01-15
