Contemporary societies are constructed constricted and constrained by various series of examinations Governments of both Western and non Western countries tend to conduct detailed multi layered and continuous systems of tests or examinations International tests such as PISA and TIMSS have also been introduced to compare the relative performances of learners within diverse educational institutions across different countries Examinations therefore provide a methodological pivot for comparing a range of societies They enable us to contrast the West and the East the North and the South tribal and mass society ancient and postmodern civilization and so on Comparing parallel societies from across Asia the Middle East Europe and North America this book proposes fundamental transitions in sociological research from system to process and from communication to composition through intensive studies on examinations It uses ethnographies interviews questionnaires documents statistics and big data analyses to make comparisons on broad scales of time and space In so doing it suggests hypotheses encompassing different kinds of societies in human history including those in the Axial Age and the Modern Ages

Rethinking Value-Added Models in Education Audrey Amrein-Beardsley, 2014-04-24 Since passage of the No Child Left Behind Act in 2001 academic researchers econometricians and statisticians have been exploring various analytical methods of documenting students' academic progress over time. Known as value added models (VAMs), these methods are meant to measure the value a teacher or school adds to student learning from one year to the next. To date, however, there is very little evidence to support the trustworthiness of these models. What is becoming increasingly evident yet often ignored, mainly by policymakers, is that VAMs are 1 unreliable 2 invalid 3 nontransparent 4 unfair 5 fraught with measurement errors and 6 being inappropriately used to make consequential decisions regarding such things as teacher pay retention and termination. Unfortunately, their unintended consequences are not fully recognized at this point either. Given such the timeliness of this well researched and thoughtful book, cannot be overstated. This book sheds important light on the debate surrounding VAMs and thereby offers states and practitioners a highly important resource from which they can

Milton,2014-04-01 Much of the current debate about education too often resembles the blind men describing an elephant apprehending only a particular part of the situation or the process many analysts tell an evocative but incomplete story The so called reform discussion proceeds with a lack of depth about the nuances and realistic limitations in the institutional order of school This book argues that as regulation of schools moves further up the bureaucratic hierarchy first to state departments of education then to the national department of education the legal and institutional requirements get more intensive but less concretely useful in class rooms This bureaucratization serves to tighten the organizational environment thereby increasing the risk of normal accidents The increasing governmental management in other words makes it more likely that schools will fail to meet their goals Analyses of education are too often developed for public consumption in a fast moving political world This book examines some of the deeper organizational reasons why things don t work so well in school as well as a look at some of things that do work Most importantly the book will explain how the social and cultural expectations of what schools can do may create unrealistic hopes We as a society and schools as institutions embrace these unreasonably high hopes at our collective peril Check out Andrew s latest interview with Seattle Radio <http://kiroradio.com> listen 9972862 2012 Sunrise Review, Common Interest Community Association Managers Colorado.
