

Master of Public Health

1. Statement of purpose for Masters of Public Health in USA

I would like to think of a world where people would give priority to prevention rather than cure and save millions of dollars in medical procedures and health care provisions. During the initial stage of my medical studies, I was considering a career in rehabilitation medicine because of the exposure that I had in physical therapy. Although I enjoyed the field of helping people recover from their injuries and regain some of the functions that they have lost,

I have often wondered why people prefer to spend so much money on seeking effective medical treatment instead of preventing illnesses, diseases and injuries. While having close contacts with patients and monitoring their health conditions, my heart was drawn to pursue a career that would give emphasis to prevention and primary care so I can help my country and my fellowmen in Vietnam.

Being a daughter of parents who are both in the field of medicine, I am fortunate enough to have a close view of the skills, knowledge and dedication involve in being a doctor. Since I was a child, I had an early exposure in seeing my father render his service as a family physician in his private clinic in our district. My father has been working for more than 30 years. Each time I see patients consult him on some illnesses and health problems that are preventable, the never ending thought of knowing why people do not want to prevent illnesses kept bothering me. I felt that something should be done.

When I complete my Master degree in Public Health, I would like to collaborate with the Department of Health in educating my countrymen on the importance of preventive medicine so they can be spared of costly medical bills and they will be able to live a healthy and productive life. Furthermore, I would like to be involved in research so I can impart my knowledge to other doctors and medical students and facilitate an exchange of knowledge and views among medical professionals on issues related to public health in my country and abroad.

2. Submit a narrative describing my past education, experience, and current professional career objectives.

Through the Japanese government scholarship, I was awarded a full scholarship to take a medical course in Japan. I have lived in Tokyo, Japan for 6 years. Currently, I am on my last year of my medical studies in Tokyo Medical and Dental University.

I obtained an initial introduction to public health during the 2-month course period in my current university. The one semester class provided me with a basic but thorough understanding of the issues faced in health care today. Then, I spent a month of internship in various health clinics in Tokyo and its outskirts. To increase my knowledge about health care in other parts of the world, I participated in a month of externship in Western health care in the Gynecology department in Medical Univers
