Central and Southern Florida Project, Broward County Water Preserve Area, Project Implementation Report ,2007 Central and Southern Florida Project, Everglades Agricultural Area Storage Reservoirs ,2006 Fort Lauderdale Hollywood International Airport ,2008 Progress Toward Restoring the Everglades National Research Council,Division on Earth and Life Studies,Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology,Water Science and Technology Board,Committee on Independent Scientific Review of Everglades Restoration Progress,2009-01-29 This book is the second biennial evaluation of progress being made in the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan CERP a multibillion dollar effort to restore historical water flows to the Everglades and return the ecosystem closer to its natural state Launched in 2000 by the U S Army Corps of Engineers and the South Florida Water Management District CERP is a multiorganization planning process that includes approximately 50 major projects to be completed over the next several decades Progress Toward Restoring the Everglades The Second Biennial Review 2008 concludes that budgeting planning and procedural matters are hindering a federal and state effort to restore the Florida Everglades ecosystem which is making only scant progress toward achieving its goals Good science has been developed to support restoration efforts but future progress is likely to be limited by the availability of funding and current authorization mechanisms Despite the accomplishments that lay the foundation for CERP construction no CERP projects have been completed to date To begin reversing decades of decline managers should address complex planning issues and move forward with projects that have the most potential to restore the natural ecosystem

Evaporation and Evapotranspiration Wossenu Abtey,Assefa Melesse,2012-08-28 The book is a thorough presentation of theoretical and applied aspects of the evaporation and evapotranspiration process supported by data from experimental studies It is written in a way that the theoretical background of evaporation and evapotranspiration estimation is presented in a simplified manner comprehensive to most technical readers The book deals with details of meteorological parameters and monitoring sensors which are needed for estimating evaporation and evapotranspiration Errors in meteorological parameter measurements are also presented Estimation errors strengths weaknesses and applicability of a wide range of evaporation and evapotranspiration estimation methods are presented along with samples of application to a certain region Application of newer simpler methods is presented A new technology remote sensing application to evaporation and evapotranspiration estimation is presented The latest interest in the subject climate change and evapotranspiration is presented in the last chapter This book will be beneficial to students hydrologists engineers meteorologists water managers and others Adaptation to Climate Change through Water Resources Management Dominic Stucker,Elena Lopez-Gunn,2014-08-27 The impacts of human induced climate change are largely mediated by water such as alterations in precipitation and glacial melt patterns variations in river flow increased occurrence of droughts and floods and sea level rise in densely populated coastal areas Such phenomena impact both urban and rural communities in developed emerging and developing countries Taking a systems approach this book analyzes evidence from 26 countries and identifies common barriers and bridges for local adaptation to climate change through water resources management It includes a global set of case studies from places experiencing increased environmental and social pressure due to population growth development and migration including in Africa Asia Australia Europe North and South America All chapters consider the crosscutting themes of adaptive capacity equity and sustainability These point to resilient water allocation policies and practices that are capable of protecting social and environmental interests whilst ensuring the efficient use of an often scarce resource

Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications ,2004 Central and Southern Florida Project, Indian River Lagoon, Martin and St. Lucie Counties ,2004 To Construct Stormwater Treatment Areas on Compartments B and C of the Everglades Agriculture Area ,2009 Progress Toward Restoring the Everglades National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee on Independent Scientific Review of Everglades Restoration Progress, 2019-04-27 During the past century the Everglades one of the world's treasured ecosystems has been dramatically altered by drainage and water management infrastructure that was intended to improve flood management urban water supply and agricultural production The remnants of the original Everglades now compete for water with urban and agricultural interests and are impaired by contaminated runoff from these two sectors The Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan CERP a joint effort launched by the state and the federal government in 2000 seeks to reverse the decline of the ecosystem The multibillion dollar project was originally envisioned as a 30 to 40 year effort to achieve ecological restoration by reestablishing the natural hydrologic characteristics of the Everglades where feasible and to create a water system that serves the needs of both the natural and the human systems of South Florida Over the past two years impressive progress has been made in planning new CERP projects and the vision for CERP water storage is now becoming clear Construction and completion of authorized CERP projects will likely take several decades and at this pace of restoration it is even more imperative that agencies anticipate and design for the Everglades of the future This seventh biennial review assesses the progress made in meeting the goals of the CERP and provides an in depth review of CERP monitoring with particular emphasis on project level monitoring and assessment It reviews developments in research and assessment that inform restoration decision making and identifies issues for in depth evaluation considering new CERP program developments policy initiatives or improvements in scientific knowledge that have implications for restoration progress

Advances in Modeling Agricultural Systems Petraq Papajorgji, Panos M. Pardalos, 2009-02-28 Agriculture has experienced a dramatic change during the past decades The change has been structural and technological Structural changes can be seen in the size of current farms not long ago agricultural production was organized around small farms whereas nowadays the agricultural landscape is dominated by large farms Large farms have better means of applying new technologies and therefore technological advances have been a driving force in changing the farming structure New technologies continue to emerge and their mastery and use in requires that farmers gather more information and make more complex technological choices In particular the advent of the Internet has opened vast opportunities for communication and business opportunities within the agricultural community But at the same time it has created another class of complex issues that need to be addressed sooner rather than later Farmers and agricultural researchers are faced with an overwhelming amount of information they need to analyze and synthesize to successfully manage all the facets of agricultural production This daunting challenge requires new and complex approaches to farm management A new type of agricultural management system requires active cooperation among multidisciplinary and multi institutional teams and refining of existing and creation of new analytical theories with potential use in agriculture Therefore new management agricultural systems must combine the newest achievements in many scientific domains such as agronomy economics mathematics and computer science to name a few United States
