Chapter 1 – Functions – Characteristics and Properties

Chapter 1.1- Functions

In Summary

Key Ideas

- A function is a relation in which there is a unique output for each input. This means that each value of the independent variable (the domain) must correspond to one, and only one, value of the dependent variable (the range).
- Functions can be represented graphically, numerically, or algebraically.

| Graphical Example                                                                 | Numerical Examples                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Algebraic Examples |     |    |    |    |   |   |   |   |   |   |    |                                                        |

Need to Know

- Function notation,  $f(x)$ , is used to represent the values of the dependent variable in a function, so  $y = f(x)$ .
- You can use the vertical line test to check whether a graph represents a function. A graph represents a function if every vertical line intersects the graph in, at most, one point. This shows that there is only one element in the range for each element in the domain.
- The domain and range of a function depend on the type of function.
- The domain and range of a function that models a particular situation may need to be restricted, based on the situation. For example, negative values may not have meaning when dealing with variables such as time.
