Psychological Studies in the Teaching, Learning and Assessment of Mathematics Yiming Cao,Zsolt Lavicza ,Shuhua An,Lianchun Dong,2024-05-31 There is no doubt that the onset of a new decade has brought high expectations of academic progress for scholars especially for researchers in mathematics education The International Group for the Psychology of Mathematics Education was born in 1976 which focused on the international exchange of knowledge in the psychology of mathematics education the promotion of interdisciplinary research with psychologists mathematicians and mathematics teachers and the development of the psychological aspects of teaching and learning mathematics and its implications Teaching Mathematics Creatively Linda Pound,Trisha Lee,2021-09-30 This revised and updated third edition offers a range of strategies activities and ideas to bring mathematics to life in the primary classroom Taking an innovative and playful approach to maths teaching this book promotes creativity as a key element of practice and offers ideas to help your students develop knowledge understanding and enjoyment of the subject In the creative classroom mathematics becomes a tool to build confidence develop problem solving skills and motivate children The fresh approaches explored in this book include a range of activities such as storytelling music and construction elevating maths learning beyond subject knowledge itself to enable students to see mathematics in a new way Key chapters of this book explore Learning maths outdoors make more noise make more mess or work on a larger scale Everyday maths making sense of the numbers patterns shapes and measures children see around them Music and maths the role of rhythm in learning and music and pattern in maths Stimulating accessible and underpinned by the latest research and theory this is essential reading for trainee and practising teachers who wish to embed creative approaches to maths teaching in their classroom Frontiers in the Acquisition of Literacy Claire M. Fletcher-Flinn,2015-09-28 Learning to read and to spell are two of the most important cultural skills that must be acquired by children and for that matter anyone learning a second language We are not born with an innate ability to read A reading system of mental representations that enables us to read must be formed in the brain Learning to read in alphabetic orthographies is the acquisition of such a system which links mental representations of visual symbols letters in print words with pre existing phonological sound and semantic comprehension cognitive systems for language Although spelling draws on the same representational knowledge base and is usually correlated with reading the acquisition processes involved are not quite the same Spelling requires the sequential production of letters in words and at beginning levels there may not be a full degree of integration of phonology with its representation by the orthography Reading on the other hand requires only the recognition of a word for pronunciation Hence spelling is more difficult than reading and learning to spell may necessitate more complete representations or more conscious access to them The learning processes that children use to acquire such cognitive systems in the brain and whether these same processes are universal across different languages and orthographies are central theoretical questions Most children learn to read and spell their language at the same time thus the co ordination of these two facets of literacy acquisition needs explication as well as the effect of different teaching approaches on acquisition Lack of progress in either reading and or spelling is also a major issue of concern for parents and teachers necessitating a cross disciplinary approach to the problem encompassing major efforts from researchers in neuroscience cognitive science experimental psychology and education The purpose of this Research Topic is to summarize and review what has been accomplished so far and to further explore these general issues Contributions from different perspectives are welcomed and could include theoretical computational and empirical works that focus on the acquisition of literacy including cross orthographic research
