Australian National Bibliography: 1992 National Library of Australia, 1988. Perspectives in Business Informatics Research Janis Grabis, Marite Kirikova, 2011-10-07. The 25 full papers accepted for this volume were selected from 68 submissions. In addition, two invited papers presented at the conference are also included. Agile Service Development Marc Lankhorst, 2012-04-23. Economies around the globe have evolved into being largely service-oriented economies. Consumers no longer just want a printer or a car; they rather ask for a printing service or a mobility service. In addition, service-oriented organizations increasingly exploit new devices, technologies, and infrastructures. Agility is the ability to deal with such changing requirements and environments. Agile ways of working embrace change as a positive force and harness it to the organization's competitive advantage. The approach described in this book focuses on the notion of a service as a piece of functionality that offers value to its customers. Instead of solely looking at agility in the context of system or software development, agility is approached in a broader context. The authors illustrate three kinds of agility that can be found in an agile enterprise: business process and system agility. These three types of agility reinforce each other and establish the foundation for the agile enterprise. Architecture patterns, models, and all of the best practices in system development contribute to agile service development and building agile applications. This book addresses two audiences. On the one hand, it aims at agile and architecture practitioners who are looking for more agile ways of working in designing and building business services or who are interested in extending and improving their agile methods by using models and model-based architectures. On the other hand, it addresses students of enterprise architecture and software development or service science courses both in computer science and in business administration. Enterprise Resource Planning: Global Opportunities and Challenges Hossain, Liaquat, Patrick, Jon David, Rashid, Mohammad A., 2001-07-01. Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) refers to large commercial software packages that promise a seamless integration of information flow through an organization by combining various sources of information into a single software application and a single database. The outcome of ERP itself is still a mystery, but the trends and issues it has created will be the enigma that future generations will have to solve. Traditionally, separate units were created within an organization to carry out various tasks, and these functional areas would create their own information systems, thereby giving rise to systems that were not integrated. ERP strives to provide a solution to these problems. Enterprise Resource Planning Solutions and Management examines the issues that need to be further studied and better understood to ensure successful implementation and deployment of ERP systems

Telhada, 2010-06-15 The socio technical gap is the great divide between social activities such as coordination which researchers and practitioners aim to support and those that are actually supported by technology. As the social interaction takes place through technology it is changed and mediated by the technology. This gap between the two dimensions is being challenged by new and innovative approaches such as cognitive ergonomics and Web 2.0. 3.0 Research in Decision Making DM theory and Decision Support Systems DSS shows that this gap is due in part to technical limitations and in part to the complexity of the contexts where decision support must be provided. Thus DSS researchers face important questions concerned with the encapsulation of complex social aspects of managerial decision making as well as with the representation of key human cognitive mechanisms such as intuition and insight within computational systems. This book presents the latest innovations and advances in decision support theory and practice with a special focus on bridging the socio technical gap.
