Language fundamentally defines and distinguishes us as humans as members of society and as individuals. As we go through life, our relationship with language and with learning shifts and changes, but it remains significant. This book is an up-to-date resource for graduate students and researchers in second language L2 acquisition who are interested in language learning across the lifespan. The main goal is to survey and evaluate what is known about the linguistic cognition-affect associations that occur in L2 learning from birth through senescence, passing through the stages of childhood, adolescence, adulthood, and third age; the extent to which L2 acquisition may be seen as contributing to healthy and active aging; the impact of the development of personalized technology-enhanced communicative L2 environments; and how these phenomena are to be approached scientifically and methodologically. The effects of certain specific variables such as gender, socio-economic background, and bilingualism are also analyzed, as we argue that chronological age does not determine the positioning of L2 learners across the lifespan; age is part of a complex web of social distinctions such as psychological and individual factors that intersect in the construction of a learner's relative status and opportunities.
