

Passage One

The California Gold Rush

The discovery of gold in what is now California started one of the largest migrations of people in history. In just a few years, San Francisco changed from a town of about 800 people to a city of 35,000. Many thousands of people, often desperate but hoping to get rich, participated in the California Gold Rush.

On January 24th, 1948, John Sutter hired many people to build a sawmill on the southern end of the American River, which is now the California town of Coloma. One person he hired was James Marshall. While digging at the site, Marshall saw some tiny golden flakes, and reported his findings to Sutter. Sutter tested the small nuggets and they were gold! No one is sure about who actually found the first gold, but Marshall first reported it, so he was given credit. Soon after Marshall found gold, other workers had found more gold. This started what is now called "Gold Fever". Soon news had spread that gold was discovered, and a gold rush had started.

Word spread quickly about the discovery of gold. Samuel Brennan, who was a businessman and journalist, left San Francisco and traveled to Coloma to see if the stories were true. After confirming the story and

As the army s topographical engineer in California from 1849 to 1851 George Horatio Derby wrote detailed reports on the region its people its resources and its geography providing critical information for an understaffed military charged with bringing order to a vast new empire along the Pacific Slope Early maps and reports by pioneers trappers and newspapermen even by such professionals as John C Fr mont and William Emory were limited in scope and often unreliable In contrast those authored by Derby and the army s other trained topographical engineers were remarkably accurate extensive and richly descriptive Long buried in the files of the National Archives they have also remained largely unknown even to historians Collected and reproduced here for the first time these journals and maps offer a new and unique perspective on California in the mid nineteenth century Derby s reports and journals appear alongside those of Robert Stockton Williamson William H Warner Edward O C Ord Nathaniel Lyon Henry Walton Wessells and Erasmus Darwin Keyes These documents offer extraordinary firsthand views of the environment natural resources geography and early settlement as well as the effects of disease on Native and white populations The writers detailed often witty insights offer new understandings of life in California during an era of momentous change Historian Gary Clayton Anderson and anthropologist Laura Lee Anderson provide historical geographic and biographical context in the book s introduction and in headnotes and annotations for each journal With these editorial enhancements the documents reveal as much of the character of their authors and their time as of the land and peoples they so carefully describe The Elementary School Library Collection Lauren K. Lee,1992 Not Just Play Meryl Nadel,Susan Scher,2019-05-20 Camps often provide children with a first taste of independence and freedom from the restrictions of home and school while offering a milieu full of opportunities for psychosocial development creative interaction and mutual aid Though summer camps have simultaneously given current and future social workers educational practice research and theory development opportunities as they direct staff attend and provide supervision the field has received limited scholarly attention Not Just Play focuses on the relationship between social work and the summer camp movement and provides a comprehensive treatment of this underappreciated area of practice Social workers and camp professionals will value the many advantages and connections explored in the volume which also incorporates case vignettes and core scholarly research The text offers readers a multifaceted examination of social work and summer camp that broadens their professional and scholarly perspective
