Liquid Crystal Displays Robert H. Chen, 2011-08-04 An unprecedented look into the basic physics chemistry and technology behind the LCD Most notably used for computer screens televisions and mobile phones LCDs liquid crystal displays are a pervasive and increasingly indispensable part of our lives Providing both an historical and a business minded context this extensive resource describes the unique scientific and engineering techniques used to create these beautiful clever and eminently useful devices In this book the history of the science and technology behind the LCD is described in a prelude to the development of the device presenting a rational development theme and pinpointing innovations The book begins with Maxwell s theory of electromagnetism and the ultimately profound realization that light is an electromagnetic wave and an electromagnetic wave is light The power of mathematical physics thus was brought to bear upon the study of light and particularly the polarization of light by material bodies including liquid crystals After a brief historical description of polarization a physical interpretation provides substance to the mathematical concepts Subsequent chapters cover Thermodynamics for liquid crystals The Maier Saupe mean field phenomenological static continuum and dynamic continuum theories The transistor and integrated circuit Glass panels and modules The calculus of variations The active matrix Semiconductor fabrication The global LCD business Additionally the book illustrates how mathematics physics and chemistry are put to practical use in the LCDs we use every day By describing the science from an historical perspective and in practical terms in the context of a device very familiar to readers the book presents an engaging and unique view of the technology for everyone from science students to engineers product designers and indeed anyone curious about LCDs Series Editor Anthony C Lowe The Lambert Consultancy Braishfield UK The Society for Information Display SID is an international society which has the aim of encouraging the development of all aspects of the field of information display Complementary to the aims of the society the Wiley SID series is intended to explain the latest developments in information display technology at a professional level The broad scope of the series addresses all facets of information displays from technical aspects through systems and prototypes to standards and ergonomics

Marketing Issues in Transitional Economies Rajeev Batra, 2012-12-06 As the markets in transitional economies open and grow major challenges and opportunities arise for multinational firms entering these markets local firms facing these new competitors and policymakers seeking to increase the ability of all firms to compete fairly and efficiently Yet despite the important questions transition economies pose for policymakers and companies seeking to enter and compete in these new markets there has been a relative absence of systematic research on these concerns This book seeks to fill a gap in the existing literature by offering a pioneering and comprehensive examination of issues that have developed as markets in transitional economies become more deregulated and open The countries discussed include China the Czech Republic Hungary India Poland Romania Russia South Africa and South Korea The topics covered are divided into five main sections and the individual chapters are written by some of the world's leading academic experts on these issues. Most of the authors draw from freshly collected data in new studies of consumers and/or firms in transitional economies. After an opening section which discusses the marketing issues and challenges multinational and local firms face in transitional economies, the next three sections offer detailed treatments of changing consumer behavior, measuring and improving the marketing orientation of firms, and implementing and managing distribution channels. The fifth and final section is devoted to firm strategies and tactics examined variously from the perspective of multinational firms entering these new markets, from the viewpoint of existing local firms facing new competitive challenges from global entrants, and from the perspective of local firms seeking to establish themselves in foreign markets where they have not previously competed. Most of the individual chapters are revised versions of papers originally presented at a conference sponsored by the William Davidson Institute which focuses on research related to emerging and transitional economies and have not previously appeared in published form. Thus the book is a unique collection of cutting edge scholarship on the various aspects of marketing in transitional economies. It will prove valuable reading to academics, policymakers, and international business strategists. Maximum PC, 2008-08.
