1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he sees the bravery and sacrifice of the men of the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to change his mind and becomes a more progressive and inclusive leader.

There are many differences among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts. Some were volunteers, while others were forced into the army. They came from different backgrounds and had different levels of education.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

White soldiers initially had negative attitudes toward the 54th, viewing them as inferior and untrustworthy. However, as they fought together in battle, these attitudes began to change, and many white soldiers came to respect and value the contributions of the 54th.

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it represents a stand for equality and justice. He believed that the 54th had earned the right to be treated as equal to white soldiers, and he was willing to sacrifice his own life to ensure that they were not abandoned.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings?/ought to make you feel good?

The incident ended as I expected, with the 54th being abandoned by the white army. This was a disappointing and heartbreaking outcome, but it also highlighted the bravery and sacrifice of the 54th. It made me feel good about the courage of the men of the 54th and the progress that has been made since then.
