Johnson,2019-04-16 An acclaimed economist reveals that school integration efforts in the 1970s and 1980s were overwhelmingly successful and argues that we must renew our commitment to integration for the sake of all Americans We are frequently told that school integration was a social experiment doomed from the start But as Rucker C Johnson demonstrates in Children of the Dream it was in fact a spectacular achievement Drawing on longitudinal studies going back to the 1960s he shows that students who attended integrated and well funded schools were more successful in life than those who did not and this held true for children of all races Yet as a society we have given up on integration Since the high point of integration in 1988 we have regressed and segregation again prevails Contending that integrated well funded schools are the primary engine of social mobility Children of the Dream offers a radical new take on social policy It is essential reading in our divided times The Oxford Handbook of Banking Allen N. Amrein-Beardsley,2014-04-24 Since passage of the of No Child Left Behind Act in 2001 academic researchers econometricians and statisticians have been exploring various analytical methods of documenting students academic progress over time Known as value added models VAMs these methods are meant to measure the value a teacher or school adds to student learning from one year to the next To date however there is very little evidence to support the trustworthiness of these models What is becoming increasingly evident yet often ignored mainly by policymakers is that VAMs are 1 unreliable 2 invalid 3 nontransparent 4 unfair 5 fraught with measurement errors and 6 being inappropriately used to make consequential decisions regarding such things as teacher pay retention and termination Unfortunately their unintended consequences are not fully recognized at this point either Given such the timeliness of this well researched and thoughtful book cannot be overstated This book sheds important light on the debate surrounding VAMs and thereby offers states and practitioners a highly important resource from which they can move forward in more research based ways
