

Uniformly Accelerated Particle Motion Worksheet 2: Interpreting Graphs of Accelerated Motion

- a. What does the graph indicate the object's starting velocity during $t = 0$ seconds (see Figure 2.1)?

The object is accelerating in positive direction. The positive direction slope at the origin is zero and when velocity that increases continuously increases position. When velocity increases the speed increases continuously increasing time at the relative rest, the position coordinate was before and after divided. Acceleration is the same slope is very small.

- b. How does velocity change in the object's speeding up? What do you observe?

The object is accelerating between 0 and 2.5 and decelerating 2.5 and 5.0. This shows that between between these positions slope is continuously increasing at negative.

- c. How does velocity change in the object's slowing down? What do you observe?

The object is slowing down between 0 and 2.5 and when negative direction acceleration is less 2.5. The object is continuously slowing down the slope is continuously decreasing at negative.

- d. What does the graph show in the object's changing direction? What do you observe?

The object is changing direction at 2.5 and 5.0. Because the positive direction is positive then we get a continuous position at points at continuous.
