

Chapter 13: Best Practices

- Laptops and battery life are a common source of issues for users. Have the students bring in three suggestions for prolonging the operation time of the laptop battery during a single session of laptop use.
- Research laptop problems on the Internet before class. Bring the problems to class, have the students divide into teams, and give each team a problem. Tell one half of the team the solution. Have the other half of the team ask questions in order to arrive at a solution. For example, a laptop is running out of memory and experiencing errors. One half of the team could ask, how many applications are open when this occurs? The other side of the team answers based on what they know.
- Search on the Internet for the following term to get help from sites for laptop repair: laptop disassembly guide.
