

Expository Education Essay

To begin with, while traditional education considers the main value of educational process to be the knowledge transferred to the student, Botkin's innovative education presents the knowledge as a means rather than an end, at the same time orienting at the development of the student's personality through knowledge. It is less concerned with controlling the educational process, trying to create circumstances in which the student would establish his or her own goals and achieve them, while transforming his or her own self and self-regulating the studying process.

Traditional education represents in itself more or less stable structure, without undergoing dramatic differences in the course of years. The accumulation of knowledge goes on, of course, but only in the subjects where it is impossible to avoid, for example, history and literature, which are being expanded all the time. Curriculum for exact sciences, like physics or mathematics may not change for decades. Botkin offers another decision, which presupposes that educational system is dynamic, ever-changing structure that is being regrouped and renewed constantly, with new programs and educational disciplines appearing all the time.

As opposed to reproductive nature of traditional education (the student perceives information and reproduces it), innovative education is supposed to be only and specifically creative process. It should teach students to create text irrespectively of its subject, understand information even if it has never been perceived by the student yet, solve any problems by means of independent thinking rather than applying pre-existing, memorized solutions.

It also cancels the long-lasting tradition of relationship "teacher-student" as "superior-inferior", making both the teacher and the student equal participants of educational process, who work on one and the same task in cooperation, rather than submission. Any kind of outside control is supposed to be harmful for the process and, therefore, abolished, with its place taken by self-control, mutual control and coordination.

Of course, the self-sufficient system of education based on equality of teacher and student may look really alluring, but all the same, it is more of a utopia than reality. Botkin idealizes children and thinks that it is possible to create such system; reality would most likely say "no".

Good Science in Middle School, Expanded 2nd Edition Olaf Jorgenson, Rick Vanosdall, Vicki Massey, Jackie Cleveland, 2014-04-01. We are among those who have come to enjoy the blossoming intellects, often comical behaviors, and insatiable curiosity of middle schoolers and choose to work with them. With more than 130 years of combined experience in the profession, we've gathered a lot of ideas to share. We know from our interactions with educators around the country that precious few quality resources exist to assist science teachers in the middle, and this was a central impetus for updating Doing Good Science in Middle School. From the preface: This lively book contains the kind of guidance that could only come from veterans of the middle school science trenches. The authors know you're crazy busy, so they made the book easy to use whether you want to read it cover to cover or pick out sections to help you with lesson planning and classroom management. They also know you face new challenges, so they thoroughly revised this second edition to meet the needs of today's students. The book contains big picture concepts such as how to understand middle school learners and explore the nature of science with them; a comprehensive overview of science and engineering practices; STEM and inquiry-based middle school science instruction aligned with A Framework for K-12 Science Education and the Next Generation Science Standards; 10 new and updated teacher-tested activities that integrate STEM with literacy skill building; information on best instructional practices and professional development resources; and connections to the Common Core State Standards in English language arts and mathematics. If you're a new teacher, you'll gain a solid foundation in how to teach science and engineering practices while better understanding your often enigmatic middle-grade students. If you're a veteran teacher, you'll benefit from a fresh view of what your colleagues are doing in new times. Either way, Doing Good Science in Middle School is a rich opportunity to reaffirm that what you do is good science. A Tale of Two Schools Richard Donato, G. Richard Tucker, 2010. This volume documents a sixteen-year longitudinal study of two elementary schools in which Spanish and Japanese foreign language programs were implemented and evaluated Evaluation of the programs involved documenting children s language development assessing the attitudes of various constituents and examining critical issues related to the introduction and successful operation of a well articulated sequential foreign language program in schools The volume concludes with a discussion of possible reasons why over time certain sequential foreign language programs flourish and grow while other programs are reduced or eliminated from the school s curriculum Parallels with the theory and practice of environmental sustainable development are used as a framework for this analysis This book will be invaluable to educators and parents needing practical and accessible research based advice on developing implementing and evaluating foreign language learning programs in elementary and middle schools Merrill Swain University of Toronto Canada Using the contrastive stories of two early foreign language programs the authors provide longitudinal research based evidence of program practices and outcomes that focus attention on the critical questions of students ability to achieve language competence and cultural understanding and on program sustainability The authors provide implications for future research and invaluable recommendations for enhancing the sustainability of both new and on going early foreign language programs Marcia Rosenbusch Iowa State University USA

Teaching Language Arts in Middle Schools Sharon Kingen,2000-02-01 This text is designed specifically to meet the needs of preservice teachers who have had little experience working in middle grade classrooms Three ideas are central teaching language arts at the middle level is a complex activity that demands expertise in the use of a variety of strategies reading and writing are key processes of language arts study but so are speaking listening and viewing visually representing and teaching the processes of effective communication is crucial but middle school students must also begin to learn the content of the field literature language and media Teaching Language Arts in Middle Schools gives balanced attention to various teaching strategies processes and content demonstrating how all of these connect to improve students abilities to communicate In this text Research and theory are summarized and applied to practice A non prescriptive approach is integrated with practical information Debates in the field are acknowledged Additional reading and research are emphasized The author s voice and point of view are explicit

Bilingualism for All? Nelson Flores,Amelia Tseng,Nicholas Subtirelu,2020-12-16 It is common for scholarly and mainstream discourses on dual language education in the US to frame these programs as inherently socially transformative and to see their proliferation in recent years as a natural means of developing more anti racist spaces in public schools In contrast this book adopts a raciolinguistic perspective that points to the contradictory role that these programs play in both reproducing and challenging racial hierarchies The book includes 11 chapters that adopt a range of methodological techniques qualitative quantitative and textual disciplinary perspectives linguistics sociology and anthropology and language foci Spanish Hebrew and Korean to examine the ways that dual language education programs in the US often reinforce the racial inequities that they purport to challenge
