Richard Buckminster Fuller,2018-06-07 R Buckminster Fuller eclettico genio statunitense affida a questo Manuale operativo per Nave Spaziale Terra decenni di riflessioni sul futuro dell'umanità Messaggi lanciati nello spazio progetti avanguardistici profezie destinate a realizzarsi negli anni a venire che rispondono a domande sempre più urgenti come sopravvivremo alle crisi che stanno sopraggiungendo come risolveremo i problemi più critici l'inquinamento la povertà Dagli albori della civiltà gli umani hanno dovuto specializzarsi in occupazioni e conoscenze sempre più vaste dalla scarsa illuminazione di una grotta di pochi metri al governo di un regno o di un impero dalle precarie tecniche di caccia e allevamento a quelle di produzione industriale Il fascino della conquista ha donato agli abitanti delle terre emerse re inventori artisti mostri scienziati destinati a possedere un'immaginazione straordinaria e a inseguire i sogni e gli incubi dell'esistenza mentre miliardi di anonimi individui si sono perfezionati in un ruolo specifico per mandare avanti gli ingranaggi del pianeta Quando hanno scoperto il mare gli umani si sono resi conto di quanto modesti fossero i territori fino ad allora esplorati e una domanda di infinitudine li ha spinti ad abbandonare il proprio status di pedoni per conquistare come Odisseo nuove forme di paesaggio e di sapienza Molto più tardi hanno capito che era possibile abitare anche il cielo i pianeti le galassie l'universo Davanti a quell'immensità la vita del pianeta Terra apparsa ancora più microscopica la sopravvivenza più che mai minacciata dall'esiguità delle risorse A guardarla dallo spazio infatti la Terra una sfera sospesa in mezzo a miliardi di altre una piccola nave che solca lo spazio l'umanità il suo timoniere Che cosa dobbiamo fare noi ultimi esseri umani perché questa navicella oggi in avaria resista all'inevitabile collasso Buckminster Fuller mette in discussione il concetto millenario di specializzazione chiede una rivoluzione progettuale e offre consigli sul modo in cui guidare questa nave spaziale verso un futuro sostenibile Per farlo afferma indispensabile distogliere il nostro sguardo dalla limitatezza del dettaglio e ammirare il mondo nell'immensità del suo insieme      Scientific and

Moreno-Torres,Peter Mariën,Guadalupe Dávila,Marcelo L. Berthier,2017-03-23 Language learning also implies the acquisition of a set of phonetic rules and prosodic contours which define the accent in that language While often considered as merely accessory accent is an essential component of psychological identity as it embodies information on origin culture and social class Speaking with a non standard foreign accent is not inconsequential because it may negatively impact communication and social adjustment Nevertheless the lack of a formal definition of accent may explain that as compared with other aspects of language it has received relatively little attention until recently During the past decade there has been increasing interest in the analysis of accent from a neuroscientific perspective This e book integrates data from different scientific frameworks The reader will find fruitful research on new models of accent processing how learning a new accent proceeds and the role of feedback on accent learning in healthy subjects In addition information on accent changes in pathological conditions including developmental and psychogenic foreign accent syndromes as well as the description of a new variant of foreign accent syndrome is also included It is anticipated that the articles in this e book will enhance the understanding of accent as a linguistic phenomenon the neural networks supporting it and potential interventions to accelerate acquisition or relearning of native accents

Lanfranchi,Barbara Carretti,2016-08-05 The last forty years of research have demonstrated that working memory WM is a key concept for understanding higher order cognition To give an example WM is involved in reading comprehension problem solving and reasoning but also in a number of everyday life activities It has a clear role in the case of atypical development too For instance numerous studies have shown an impairment in WM in individuals with learning disabilities LD or intellectual disabilities ID and several researchers have hypothesized that this can be linked to their difficulties in learning cognition and everyday life The latest challenge in the field concerns the trainability of WM If it is a construct central to our understanding of cognition in typical and atypical development then specific intervention to sustain WM performance might also promote changes in cognitive processes associated with WM The idea that WM can be modified is debated however partly because of the theoretical implications of this view and partly due to the generally contradictory results obtained so far In fact most studies converge in demonstrating specific effects of WM training i e improvements in the trained tasks but few transfer effects to allied cognitive processes are generally reported It is worth noting that any maintenance effects when investigated are even more meagre In addition a number of methodological concerns have been raised in relation to the use of 1 single tasks to assess the effects of a training program 2 WM tasks differing from those used in the training to assess the effects of WM training and 3 passive control groups These and other crucial issues have so far prevented any conclusions from being drawn on the efficacy of WM training Bearing in mind that the opportunity to train WM could have a huge impact in the educational and clinical settings it seems fundamentally important to shed more light on the limits and potential of this line of research The aim of the research discussed here is to generate new evidence on the feasibility of training WM in individuals with LD and ID There are several questions that could be raised in this field For a start can WM be trained in this population Are there some aspects of WM that can be trained more easily than others Can a WM training reduce the impact of LD and ID on learning outcomes and on everyday living What kind of training program is best suited to the promotion of such changes      Host Bibliographic Record for Boundwith Item Barcode 30112111593536 and Others ,2013
