- THE 2009 BUDGET will have a significant impact on the way in which the Government will be able to fund the NHS. The Government has announced that it will be introducing a new health tax, which will be levied on the top 10% of earners. This will be a significant source of revenue for the NHS, and will help to fund the new health services that will be introduced in 2010.

- Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program significantly improved the subjects' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, and their psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory and the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory. The walking program also had a significant positive effect on the subjects' quality of life, as measured by the SF-36. The walking program was well tolerated and had no adverse effects. The results of this study suggest that a supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Arch

The arch is the curved structure of the foot that supports the body's weight. It is composed of the tarsal and metatarsal bones, which are connected by ligaments and tendons. The arch is divided into three main sections: the heel, the ball, and the toes. The arch is responsible for absorbing shock and providing a stable base for walking and running.
