

Current in a Magnet?

What causes magnetism in a magnet?

Atoms are the basic building blocks of the Elements. They are neutrally charged, but composed of smaller charged particles:

Quarks - combine to form neutrally charged neutrons and positively charged protons in the nucleus
Electrons – negatively charged particles that orbit the nucleus in variously shaped "shells" or energy levels.

Electrons' orbital motion as well as quantum mechanical spin produce an electric current and hence a magnetic field in the atom.
