

The Business Cycle

Experiment in The Business Cycle

Now, look at the graph in Figure 1. The business cycle is the pattern of fluctuations in the economy over time. The graph shows the four main variables of the business cycle.

The business cycle is the pattern of fluctuations in the economy over time.

1. Expansion: The economy grows and produces the maximum output of goods and services. This is the period of the business cycle when the economy is growing and producing the maximum output of goods and services.
2. Peak: The economy reaches its highest point of output and growth. This is the end of the expansion phase and the beginning of the contraction phase.
3. Contraction: The economy shrinks and produces less output of goods and services. This is the period of the business cycle when the economy is shrinking and producing less output of goods and services.
4. Trough: The economy reaches its lowest point of output and growth. This is the end of the contraction phase and the beginning of the expansion phase.
