

TOUCH SWITCH/PLATE

Introduction

The kit combines a touch switch and a touch plate all together in the same kit. In the touch switch two leads must be shorted together by your finger touching them. In the touch plate one plate needs to be touched. The touch switch only needs a battery to activate it but the touch plate requires a main power supply. A relay rated at 240V is included with the kit so that you may use to switch light or other mains appliances. To use the relay you must use a 12V supply taken from the main power supply.

The use of the relay to switch 220V supply with this project must use the correct boxes and connectors to protect us. The kit is constructed on a single sided printed circuit board (PCB). A computer aided design programme is used to design the board.

CIRCUIT DIAGRAM

CIRCUIT DESCRIPTION

The main part of the circuit are the two NAND gates of the 4011 IC which are connected as a flip-flop. Pins 9 and 13 are the ON and OFF contacts. The two gates are connected to the positive rail by the two 10M resistors. Shorting one of the gates with the ground rail by touching it (this is equivalent to connecting about 50K between gate and ground) FLIPS the output to that state. Shorting out the other contact FLOPs it back again. The output of the flip-flop drives a transistor connected as a switch. It switches an LED and a relay. The relay is rated to switch 240V. Connecting the two 1K resistors connects the other two NAND gates of the IC into the flip-flop and makes it much more sensitive with all four gates connected as flip flop.

Academic Growth in Higher Education Helena Pedrosa-de-Jesus, Mike Watts, 2018-11-26 Many changes in higher education have derived from Europe wide initiatives such as the Bologna process and have given increasing attention to student centred learning and teaching approaches allied to growth in teachers scholarship and academic development Academic Growth in Higher Education Questions and Answers centers around a decade long research project which is one component of a long standing programme focused on ways to promote academic development and scholarship in higher education The purpose of the book is to highlight debates and issues important in teaching and learning at the tertiary level in universities colleges and schools exploring issues that teachers and lecturers will need to address throughout their professional lives These issues surround acts of student centred learning inquiry based learning teachers own practices in the classroom and every bit as significant the activities generated by their students in the process of learning The intention is to identify some of the debates relevant to teaching and learning to challenge some of the orthodoxies within traditional forms of teaching and learning and to suggest some solutions though current practice over a wide context of activity

International Perspectives on Teaching and Learning in Higher Education Norma Ryan, 2008 University Science and Mathematics Education in Transition Ole Skovsmose, Paola Valero, Ole Ravn Christensen, 2008-11-19 More than ever our time is characterised by rapid changes in the organisation and the production of knowledge This movement is deeply rooted in the evolution of the scientific endeavour as well as in the transformation of the political economic and cultural organisation of society In other words the production of scientific knowledge is changing both with regard to the internal development of science and technology and with regard to the function and role science and technology fulfill in society This general social context in which universities and knowledge production are placed has been given different names the informational society the knowledge society the learning society the post industrial society the risk society or even the post modern society A common feature of different characterisations of this historic time is the fact that it is a period in construction Parts of the world not only of the First World but also chunks of the Developing World are involved in these transformations There is a movement from former social political and cultural forms of organisation which impact knowledge production into new forms These forms drive us into forms of organisation that are unknown and that for their very same complexity do not show a clear ending stage Somehow the utopias that guided the ideas of development and progress in the past are not present anymore and therefore the transitions in the knowledge society generate a new uncertain world We find ourselves and our universities to be in a transitional period in time In this context it is difficult to avoid considering seriously the challenges that such a complex and uncertain social configuration poses to scientific knowledge to universities and especially to education in mathematics and science It is clear that the transformation of knowledge outside universities has implied a change in the routes that research in mathematics science and technology has taken in the last decades It is also clear that in different parts of the world these changes have happened at different points in time While universities in the New World the American Continent Africa Asia and Oceania have accommodated their operation to the challenges of the construction in the new world in many European countries universities with a longer existence and tradition have moved more slowly into this time of transformation and have been responding at a less rapid pace to environmental challenges The process of tuning universities together with their forms of knowledge production and their provision of education in science and mathematics with the demands of the informational society has been a complex process as complex as the general transformation undergoing in society Therefore an understanding of the current transitions in science and mathematics education has to consider different dimensions involved in such a change Traditionally educational studies in mathematics and science education have looked at changes in education from within the scientific disciplines and in the closed context of the classroom Although educational change in the very end is implemented in everyday teaching and learning situations other parallel dimensions influencing these situations cannot be forgotten An understanding of the actual potentialities and limitations of educational transformations are highly dependent on the network of educational cultural administrative and ideological views and practices that permeate and constitute science and mathematics education in universities today This book contributes to understanding some of the multiple aspects and dimensions of the transition of science and mathematics education in the current informational society Such an understanding is necessary for finding possibilities to improve science and mathematics education in universities all around the world Such a broad approach to the transitions happening in these
