Mihaela I Stefan Trojan Technologies Canada      Choice Modelling Stephane Hess, Andrew Daly, 2013-01-01 This collection of papers by leading researchers in the field provides an excellent view of the current state of research and applications. Exciting new techniques are presented and realistic solutions are offered to issues that arise in applied work. It is an admirably rich volume offering valuable insights for all readers of choice modeling. Kenneth Train, University of California Berkeley and NERA Economic Consulting Inc, San Francisco, California, US. I am an enthusiastic fan of the ICMC where researchers are friendly, genuinely interested in learning from and helping one another. There is much to learn because each discipline brings a different perspective to the field and to theoretical and applied problems in decision making and choice behavior. The ICMC embodies the philosophy that most real choice problems are complex and require a cross-disciplinary approach. The papers in this volume represent an eclectic cross-section of the topics covered by key researchers in the field. I look forward to getting our PhD students and postdocs stuck into them. Jordan Louviere, University of Technology Sydney, Australia. Choice modelling has been one of the most active fields in economics over recent years. This valuable new book contains leading contributions from academics and practitioners from across the different areas of study where choice modelling is a key analytical technique. Drawn from a recent international conference, Choice models explain the behaviour of individuals by quantifying their values, responses and perceptions of attributes describing the various options/alternatives available to them. Policy makers and planners have long since recognised the potential of using choice models for guidance purposes with applications in fields as diverse as transport, analysis, healthcare, telecommunications, public service evaluation and energy. The unique mix of theoretical and applied chapters will appeal to academics, students, researchers and practitioners in various fields as well as anyone with a general interest in the subject.      Advanced Modelling Techniques Studying Global Changes in Environmental Sciences, 2015-10-08. Advanced Modelling Techniques Studying Global Changes in Environmental Sciences discusses the need for immediate and effective action guided by a scientific understanding of ecosystem function to alleviate current pressures on the environment. Research, especially in Ecological Modeling, is crucial to support the sustainable development paradigm in which the economy, society and the environment are integrated and positively reinforce each other. Content from this book is drawn from the 2013 conference of the International Society for Ecological Modeling (ISEM), an important and active research community contributing to this arena. Some progress towards gaining a better understanding of the processes of global change has been achieved but much more is needed. This conference provides a forum to present current research using models to investigate actions towards mitigating and adapting to change. Presents state of the art modeling techniques. Drawn from the 2013 conference of the International Society for Ecological Modeling (ISEM), an important and active research community contributing to this arena. Integrates knowledge of advanced modeling techniques in ecological and environmental sciences. Describes new applications for sustainability.      Federal Register, 2012-03      Optimizing the Delivery of Multiple Ecosystem Goods and Services in Agricultural

Systems Maria A. Tsiafouli, Evangelia G. Drakou, Alberto Orgiazzi, Katarina Hedlund, Karl Ritz, 2017-10-18 Agricultural land is subjected to a variety of societal pressures as demands for food animal feed and biomass production increase with an added requirement to simultaneously maintain natural areas and mitigate climatic and environmental impacts The biotic elements of agricultural systems interact with the abiotic environment to generate a number of ecosystem functions that offer services benefiting humans across many scales of time and space The intensification of agriculture generally reduces biodiversity including that within soil and impacts negatively upon a number of regulating and supporting ecosystem services There is a global need toward achieving sustainable agricultural systems as also highlighted in the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals There is hence a need for management regimes that enhance both agricultural production and the associated provision of multiple ecosystem services The articles of this Research Topic enhance our knowledge of how management practices applied to agricultural systems affect the delivery of multiple ecosystem services and how trade offs between provisioning regulating and supporting services can be handled both above and below ground They also show the diversity of topics that need to be considered within the framework of ecosystem services delivered by agricultural systems from knowledge on basic concepts and newly proposed frameworks to a focus on specific ecosystem types such as grasslands and high nature value farmlands pollinator habitats and soil habitats This diversity of topics indicates the need for broader scope research integrated with targeted scientific research to promote sustainable agricultural practices and to ensure food security

Behavioural Responses to a Changing World Bob B. M. Wong, Ulrika Candolin, 2025-04-23 For many animals behavioural adjustments represent the first response to human modified conditions By improving reproduction and survival such adjustments can play the lead in maintaining viable populations in the face of rapid environmental change Behavioural responses however can also be maladaptive and reduce individual fitness particularly if favourable reaction norms have not yet evolved because animals are encountering conditions that they have never experienced before Clearly behaviour matters But how can we capitalise on our understanding of animal behaviour to improve conservation and management outcomes Behavioural Responses to a Changing World Challenges and Applications a companion volume to the first edition published in 2012 examines wildlife behavioural responses to human induced environmental change through a translational lens Despite considerable and growing interest in research on the topic the predictive value and practical application of what has been learned remains underappreciated and underutilized in the context of developing real world solutions To redress this the current book builds upon the foundations of the original volume but with a more applied perspective that focuses on highlighting how different forms of environmental challenges from climate change to urbanisation influence animal behaviour and how we can effectively harness knowledge of animal behaviour to effect practical solutions to predicting and mitigating the weighty impacts of a radically changed and changing world
