Dickey-Lincoln School Lakes Project (ME,NH,VT,Que) ,1981 Drama at the Heart of English Theo Bryer,Maggie Pitfield,Jane Coles,2023-09-21 Drama at the Heart of English is unique in its exploration of drama s potential to revitalise English as a secondary school subject It focuses specifically on the value and inclusive nature of educational drama practices in the reading of literary dramatic and multimodal texts in the English classroom Examples from the authors research show English teachers working in the drama in English mode with real learners as part of their everyday classroom activity Challenging current curriculum and assessment constraints the authors argue that drama in English pedagogy re establishes English as a creative imaginative and interactive subject This book offers a blend of theory and practice to demonstrate the powerful potential of drama in English proposes that drama is a uniquely sustainable form of learning in English when fully integrated into the daily work of classroom teachers highlights the intrinsic connection that exists between drama and the playful qualities of literary texts analyses landmark moments and key policy shifts that have shaped the development of the relationship between drama and English over time This resource is for all educators interested in and passionate about the field of English and Language Arts It is a must read for the international academic community of researchers practitioners teacher educators and teachers of English as well as student teachers of English Media Drama Compendium of HEW Evaluation Studies ,1980 Final Environmental Impact Report on the Draft Marina General Plan Lamphier & Associates,2000 California. Court of Appeal (1st Appellate District). Records and Briefs California (State)., Rethinking World Bank Influence D. Brent Edwards Jr.,2023-04-13 Why is it so hard for international development organizations even ones as well resourced and influential as the World Bank to generate and sustain change in the way things are done in those countries where they work Despite what in many cases is decades of investment and effort why do partner governments continue to engage in those traditional patterns and styles of public service management that international development organizations have sought to supplant with methods that are supposedly more accountable efficient and effective This book provides an answer to these questions However rather than pathologizing partner governments as the source of the problem that is rather than maintaining the distinction between doctor international development organizations and patient partner governments wherein the patient is seen as unwilling to take their medicine enacting good governance practices this book instead reframes the relationship The central argument is first that the programs and projects of international organizations are introduced into and are constrained by multiple layers of ritual governance that is performative acts and cultural logics that intersect with and reinforce the political economic and social structures in and through which they operate As is shown the contextual factors that guide governance practices are largely beyond the reach of the international development organizations the relevant logics have their roots in state ideology but also extend back to the colonial logics that continue to operate at the heart of the state apparatus The second the central argument is that international aid organizations and the governments with which they work are engaged in a ritual aid dance where each actor plays a part but does not and cannot acknowledge the ways that it depends on the other for its own gain This relationship can be considered a dance because each participant responds to and needs the other and because both sides do so in ways that are carefully choreographed with the overall trajectory or contours of the dance being more or less known to the participants These arguments are based on research on the World Bank s efforts over the course of several decades to encourage through its financing projects and technical assistance the implementation of social sector reform in Indonesia related to decentralization community participation and school based management

Linking Emissions Trading Schemes Andreas Tuerk,2009-09-02 A growing number of GHG emissions trading schemes are being implemented at regional or national levels However even as the number of different schemes grows few linkages exist between them Major cap and trade proposals are currently at important stages in their development especially in the United States Japan and Australia some of which explicitly emphasize the aim of linking with other schemes One of the strategic goals of European climate policy is linking the EU ETS with other comparable schemes The research presented in this volume is on actual economic political and institutional constraints and implications It examines the role of linking trading schemes for the development of the post Kyoto climate architecture and for increasing linkage between schemes This essential research will be relevant to both the scientific community and for policymakers who are involved in the design of emerging trading schemes and offset mechanisms as well as in designing the post Kyoto climate regime This volume focuses specifically on o Economic institutional regulatory and legal dimensions of linking o Implications of linking on the design of emerging trading schemes o The role of linking trading schemes for the development of the post Kyoto climate regime Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents ,1984
