State Building and Late

Development David Waldner,2018-05-31 Why does state building sometimes promote economic growth and in other cases impede it Through an analysis of political and economic development in four countries Turkey Syria Korea and Taiwan this book explores the origins of political economic institutions and the mechanisms connecting them to economic outcomes David Waldner extends our understanding of the political underpinnings of economic development by examining the origins of political coalitions on which states and their institutions depend He first provides a political model of institutional change to analyze how elites build either cross class or narrow coalitions and he examines how these arrangements shape specific institutions state society relations the nature of bureaucracy fiscal structures and patterns of economic intervention He then links these institutions to economic outcomes through a bargaining model to explain why countries such as Korea and Taiwan have more effectively overcome the collective dilemmas that plague economic development than have others such as Turkey and Syria The latter countries he shows lack institutional solutions to the problems that surround productivity growth The first book to compare political and economic development in these two regions State Building and Late Development draws on and contributes to arguments from political sociology and political economy Based on a rigorous research design the work
