McKee, 2006-03-16 Few crimes generate greater public reaction than those where a mother murders her child We are repelled yet mesmerized by the emerging details of cases such as Andrea Yates and Susan Smith Annually hundreds of infants and young children perish at the hands of their mothers How could a mother destroy the first and most fundamental relationship we experience In Why Mothers Kill A Forensic Psychologist's Casebook Geoffrey R McKee Ph D uses more than a dozen case studies from his 29 year forensic psychological evaluation practice to help us and most importantly prevent these horrific events from occurring He applies current research findings to analyze explain and suggest practical interventions to alter the personal familial and situational circumstances that may influence some mothers to kill With an emphasis on prevention Dr McKee sets out specific strategies that might have been employed at various risk intervention points occurring before the child's death. Through the use of extended narratives the author brings to life the thoughts and emotions experienced by women in each of the five categories of mothers he has identified from his years of practice. Murder, Medicine and Motherhood Emma Cunliffe, 2011-05-27 Since the early 1990s unexplained infant death has been reformulated as a criminal justice problem within many western societies. This shift has produced wrongful convictions in more than one jurisdiction. This book uses a detailed case study of the murder trial and appeals of Kathleen Folbigg to examine the pragmatics of proof beyond a reasonable doubt. It explores how legal process medical knowledge and expectations of motherhood work together when a mother is charged with killing infants who have died in mysterious circumstances. The author argues that Folbigg who remains in prison was wrongly convicted. The book also employs Folbigg's trial and appeals to consider what lessons courts have learned from prior wrongful convictions such as those of Sally Clark and Angela Cannings. The author's research demonstrates that the Folbigg court was misled about the state of medical knowledge regarding infant death and that the case proceeded on the incorrect assumption that behavioural and scientific evidence provided independent proofs of guilt. Individual chapters critically assess the relationships between medical research and expert testimony the operation of unexamined cultural assumptions about good mothering and the manner in which contested cases are reported by the press as overwhelming.
