_____ 1. Revisit the first two paragraphs of Animal Farm. What is the function of this passage? Choose the best answer.

Mr. Jones, of the Manor Farm, had locked the hen-houses for the night, but was too drunk to remember to shut the pop-holes. With the ring of light from his lantern dancing from side to side, he lurched across the yard, kicked off his boots at the back door, drew himself a last glass of beer from the barrel in the scullery, and made his way up to bed, where Mrs. Jones was already snoring.

As soon as the light in the bedroom went out there was a stirring and a fluttering all through the farm buildings. Word had gone round during the day that old Major, the prize Middle White boar, had had a strange dream on the previous night and wished to communicate it to the other animals. It had been agreed that they should all meet in the big barn as soon as Mr. Jones was safely out of the way. Old Major (so he was always called, though the name under which he had been exhibited was Willingdon Beauty) was so highly regarded on the farm that everyone was quite ready to lose an hour's sleep in order to hear what he had to say.

argues that this common wisdom is wrong The literary mind the mind of stories and parables is not peripheral but basic to thought Story is the central principle of our experience and knowledge Parable the projection of story to give meaning to new encounters is the indispensable tool of everyday reason Literary thought makes everyday thought possible This book makes the revolutionary claim that the basic issue for cognitive science is the nature of literary thinking In The Literary Mind Turner ranges from the tools of modern linguistics to the recent work of neuroscientists such as Antonio Damasio and Gerald Edelman to literary masterpieces by Homer Dante Shakespeare and Proust as he explains how story and projection and their powerful combination in parable are fundamental to everyday thought In simple and traditional English he reveals how we use parable to understand space and time to grasp what it means to be located in space and time and to conceive of ourselves other selves other lives and other viewpoints He explains the role of parable in reasoning in categorizing and in solving problems He develops a powerful model of conceptual construction and in a far reaching final chapter extends it to a new conception of the origin of language that contradicts proposals by such thinkers as Noam Chomsky and Steven Pinker Turner argues that story projection and parable precede grammar that language follows from these mental capacities as a consequence Language he concludes is the child of the literary mind Offering major revisions to our understanding of thought conceptual activity and the origin and nature of language The Literary Mind presents a unified theory of central problems in cognitive science linguistics neuroscience psychology and philosophy It gives new and unexpected answers to classic questions about knowledge creativity understanding reason and invention
