Balzac's the Unknown Masterpiece (Le Chef-D'oeuvre Inconnu) and Particularly the Painter Frenhofer Erika N. Pistorius-Stamper, Reconstructing Woman Dorothy Kelly, 2010-11 Reconstructing Woman explore a scenario common to the works of four major French novelists of the nineteenth century Balzac Flaubert Zola and Villiers In the texts of each author a new Pygmalion as Balzac calls one of his characters turns away from a real woman he has loved or desired and prefers instead his artificial recreation of her All four authors also portray the possibility that this simulacrum which replaces the woman could become real The central chapters examine this plot and its meanings in multiple texts of each author with the exception of the chapter on Villiers in which only L'Eve future is considered The premise is that this shared scenario stems from the discovery in the nineteenth century that humans are transformable Because scientific innovations play a major part in this discovery Dorothy Kelly reviews some of the contributing trends that attracted one or more of the authors mesmerism dissection transformism and evolution new understandings of human reproduction spontaneous generation puericulture the experimental method These ideas and practices provided the novelists with a scientific context in which controlling changing and creating human bodies became imaginable At the same time these authors explore the ways in which not only bodies but also identity can be made In close readings Kelly shows how these narratives reveal that linguistic and coded social structures shape human identity Furthermore through the representation of the power of language to do that shaping the authors envision that their own texts would perform that function The symbol of the reconstruction of woman thus embodies the fantasy and desire that their novels could create or transform both reality and their readers in quite literal ways Through literary analyses we can deduce from the texts just why this artificial creation is a woman

Bodies of Art Marie Lathers, 2001-01-01 To the time honored myth of the artist creating works of genius in isolation with nothing but inspiration to guide him art historians have added the mitigating influences of critics dealers and the public Bodies of Art completes the picture by adding the model This lively look at atelier politics through the lens of literature focuses in particular on the female model with special attention to her race ethnicity and class The result is a suggestive account of the rise and fall of the female model in nineteenth century realism with a final emphasis on the passage of the model into photography at the turn of the century This history of the model begins in nineteenth century Paris where the artist model dynamic was regularly debated by writers and where the most important categories of models appear to be Jewish Italian and Parisian women Bodies of Art traces an evolution in the representation of this model in realist and naturalist literary works from her birth in Balzac to her death in Maupassant in the process revealing how she played a key role in theories of representation advanced by writers Throughout the book Marie Lathers connects the artist's work to the social realities and actual bodies that surround and inhabit the atelier Her work shows how much the status of the model can tell us about artistic practices during the century of the birth of modernity
